BRITAIN WEIGHS PEACE BID

Mediation Not Rejected Chamberlain Declares

LONDON, Nov. 8 (INS)—The Belgian ministerial council will meet again in emergency session tonight and the government regards the situation as "more critical than ever before," Exchange Telegraph reported from Brussels today.

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Nov. 8 (INS)—Contrary to German assertions, the British Government has not rejected "out of hand" the mediation offer of Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain assured the House of Commons today.

In reply to a question by Major Richard Clement Attlee, opposition leader, Chamberlain said that the peace offer was "receiving the careful attention of His Majesty's government."

It is impossible for the government to make any extended statement on the peace bid today, Chamberlain added.

Editor's Note: German circles in Berlin charged that the broadcast speech of Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax last night reiterating Britain's war aims had "killed the peace move before it was born.")

ATTLEE OUTLINES TERMS

Attlee stated the only peace acceptable to his Labor party would include removal of Hitler from office, restoration of Poland and Czechoslovakia and renunciation of war as German national policy.

The Allies, he said, have no desire to inflict a peace humiliating Germany and plan no punitive measures when and if victory is achieved.

Before Chamberlain made his statement, Whitehall officials insisted the peace offer would receive "urgent, careful and sympathetic consideration."

Authoritative quarters revealed that the cabinet would complete a minute scrutiny of the telegram sent by the rulers before making a "reasoned" reply, which doubtless will cover the British view of all the implications of peace at the present time.

VIEW IS PESSIMISTIC

The consensus in well-informed circles was that the British answer will declare this country is no less sincere in its desire for peace than Belgium and Holland, but that any peace must be reached on terms consistent with honor and that it must assure an end of aggression in Europe.

There was a possibility also that the reply will be accompanied by a re-statement of Britain's peace terms since it is considered here that the offer framed by Wilhelmina and Leopold seemed clearly to invite such a re-statement.

Nevertheless, the general tone of comment on the Dutch-Belgian move was pessimistic.

Queen, Leopold, to Press Their Appeal for Peace

THE HAGUE, Nov. 8 (AP)—Official circles hinted today that King Leopold and Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands might follow up their offer to serve as peace mediators with diplomatic contacts in Berlin, London and Paris.

While these circles would not speculate on the probable outcome of the dramatic peace appeal delivered last night by the two sovereigns to Europe's warring powers, an atmosphere of moderate but cautious optimism was apparent here.

It was conceded that this optimism was based on the belligerent powers' apparent reluctance to initiate major offensives rather than on any reaction produced thus far by the mediation offer.

If the offer is not rejected outright, government circles said, it might be possible to make careful contacts with the belligerents and thus give them further time to express their views.

Although initiative for advancing the mediation proposals was credited to Leopold, informed quarters said that Queen Wilhemina could be expected to take an active hand in any diplomatic negotiations that might be conducted.

Some sources intimated the present proposal was prompted by belief that Germany was about to gamble on an attack against the Maginot line.

Peace Bid Already Killed By Britain, Is Nazi View

By PIERRE J. HUSS

BERLIN, Nov. 8—The dramatic peace bid of Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold is already a dead letter—killed by the British government before it was born—authentic German quarters declared today.

As a result, the Reich may accord it only a polite acknowledgment.

The speech of British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax last night, reiterating Britain's intention to prosecute the conflict until Britain's aims are achieved, "torpedoed" the peace move and rendered the whole undertaking abortive, German officials said.

War Diary

68th Day

Behind the Front—Britain and France promised today to give careful consideration to the urgent plea of King Leopold and Queen Wilhelmina—said by the democracies to have been sent under German pressure—but all sub-surface indications were that the war would go on with ever-increasing bitterness.

Winston Churchill, Britain's militant First Lord of the Admiralty, today virtually brushed aside the royal peace appeal of Belgium and The Netherlands with the grim prediction that in the end the Allies will lash Germany so badly that "we shall break their hearts."

"It will be a long, unrelenting struggle for which we are preparing on the largest scale," Churchill told Commons.

Germany charged that Britain already had rejected the Belgo-Dutch proposal "out of hand," and indicated consequently that the dramatic midnight plea of the two monarchs would be dismissed with but a polite acknowledgement.

Prime Minister Chamberlain denied the German accusation, saying the peace proffer was "receiving the careful attention of His Majesty's government."

Meanwhile, Brussels said the Belgian ministerial council would reconvene in emergency session tonight and added the Belgian government views the situation as "more critical than ever before."

On the Sea, In the Air, On the Front—Loss of one of Britain's largest submarines, by "accidental explosion, was announced today, but the time, place and circumstances were withheld. French planes braved a Nazi air barrage over the Seigfried line and kept on their way unscathed. Germany intensified her activities on the Westwall, loosing three heavy raids against the French. Air activity on both sides on the front was reported. Britain announced the seizure of a German freighter, believed to be a submarine supply ship. The prize was taken to a British port in Africa.

British Sub Lost by Explosion

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP)—The loss of the British submarine Oxley by an accidental explosion was announced to the House of Commons today by Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty.

"Since the outbreak of the war," Churchill said, "one of our submarines, H. M. S. Oxley, has been destroyed by an accidental explosion in circumstances which made its publication inadvisable at the time."

DATE NOT DISCLOSED

He did not disclose the place or date.

(The Oxley was one of Britain's ocean-going submarines, completed in 1927, having a surface displacement of 1354 tons and a normal complement of 54 officers and men.)

Churchill declared three times as many British sub-hunting craft were at work now as at the outbreak of the war and that "a fairly sound, conservative estimate" of German submarine losses was between two and four every week.

"What I told the House under much reserve six weeks ago I can now repeat with more assurance—namely, that we are gaining a definite mastery over the U-boat attack."

MINIMIZE RAIDS

Churchill attributed the loss of the battleship Royal Oak at Scapa Flow to the fact the naval base's defenses were incomplete.

He estimated that Germany could produce two new submarines weekly and added "at any rate, our expectation is that we must face one hundred U-boats in January, less whatever sinkings have occurred."

Dealing with the additional menace of the surface raider Churchill said "it is certain that one and possibly two of the so-called pocket battleships has been out upon the Atlantic trade routes during the last six weeks."

Minimizing the successes of surface raiders to date, Churchill said "only two ships aggregating 10,000 tons have been sunk so far by surface action compared to 212,000 tons by U-boats."

Four Council Losers To Demand Recounts

Recounts of votes cast in four city council contests are expected to be requested today by unsuccessful candidates. Three of the five councilors who went down to defeat in the balloting will be among the quartet demanding such count, it is believed.

They are George A. Murray of Ward 6, now president of the council, who lost to Joseph M. Scannell by a margin of 500 votes; Sidney Rosenberg of Dorchester, defeated in Ward 14 by Joseph J. Gottlieb by a total of 300 votes, and George McMahon of Ward 8, Roxbury, who lost to William E. Hurley, according to original returns by only 113 ballots.

Fourth request for a recount will come from Representative James S Coffey of East Boston, defeated by Representative Susan Donovan for election to the council seat from Ward 1 by only 23 votes. The vote was: Coffey, 3429; Mrs. Donovan, 3452.

ONLY ITALIAN CANDIDATE

Most interesting upset of the election was in Ward 3, comprising North and West Ends and portions of South End where Councilor John I. Fitzgerald, seeking a seventh two-year term in the body, ran a poor third in a field which saw the election of Joseph Russo.

Russo was the only Italian candidate in the field and observers had repeatedly stressed the possibility of his winning.

The defeat of Mrs. Mildred Harris of Ward 9, Roxbury, came as a surprise to many. Amazing to many was the small vote given her by residents of the section.

Victory went to Daniel F. Sullivan with a vote of 2675. David

TEACHER QUIZZED AS BOARD PUSHES LOVE CULT PROBE

A "trained investigator" has been engaged to conduct a full and intensive probe of the alleged Marblehead High School "love cult" blamed in the recent gas suicide of 15-year-old Florence Bigelow.

A formal statement by the Marblehead school committee revealed this today.

The committee announced that the investigator had been ordered to uncover facts, if any, to support shocking charges brought against a woman teacher by the mother of the Bigelow girl.

Today's statement was given out after the committee had sat for its third consecutive all-night executive session.

TEACHER FACES BOARD

Called before the committee for questioning last night were the junior high school principal, Miss Isa B. Roscoe, and the accused teacher.

It was the first time the teacher had been officially interviewed by the committee. Her answer to the charges was understood to be a flat denial.

The teacher was in charge of her classes as usual, today.

In its official statement, the school committee reiterated its inability to take "drastic action" under the law until further corroboration of the "love cult" charges.

MUST WAIT FACTS

The statement was as follows:

"No immediate or drastic action can be taken on complaint against a school teacher which lacks any substantial evidence to support it.

"The committee has made arrangements for a trained investigator to ascertain any facts which may support the charges against a teacher in the school.

"The committee wishes any evidence which any citizen cares to submit to the superintendent of schools, who has been authorized to receive it on behalf of the board.

"If sufficient evidence is obtained, the committee will take suitable action as speedily as the law permits."

The charges against the teacher were made, in part, on the basis of alleged references made to her in letters written by the Bigelow girl before the latter's suicide, Oct. 27.

'Kidnaped,' Star Phones Husband

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 8 (INS)—Disclosure that his wife, Laswell Byars, 21-year-old movie actress, had disappeared and apparently was kidnaped was made early today by George Byars, test pilot.

Police asked San Francisco authorities to search for the young woman.

Byars told police that he received a telephone call Monday afternoon from his wife, who said she was going to Republic studio to see about a forthcoming film assignment, but that she failed to come home for dinner.

About 11 o'clock that night, he said, he answered his telephone and heard his wife's voice.

"Where are you?" he asked.

"I don't know," she replied.

To additional questions his wife answered only "yes" and "no," and he "sensed there was something wrong," Byars said.

Byars said the telephone operator traced the call to a town near Oxnard and that he sped in his automobile to the town, hoping to overtake his wife and a man he suspects but failed to find them.

Last night, he continued, he received another call from his wife, this time from a hotel in San Francisco. Again it was a "yes" and "no" conversation, with Byars asking:

"Has he got a gun on you?"

"Yes."

"Won't he let you loose?"

"No."

Byars said he would sign a complaint against the man he suspects of having kidnaped his wife.

STATE'S 1ST WOMAN MAYOR PLANS TO RUN WESTFIELD

Massachusetts' first woman mayor—Mrs. Alice D. Burke of Westfield—is going to set a pace in running a city which will make all other executitives sit up and take notice, she said today.

"My government will be a conservative one. Good city servants should be rewarded and bad ones weeded out.

"Communists, Nazis and all other radicals had better stay away from Westfield City Hall—Americanism is good enough for me.

"And let's tend to our own affairs and keep United States out of Europe's mess."

These are major points in Mrs. Burke's plain, straightforward political credo, stated by her today in an exclusive interview with the Boston Evening American just after she learned she was victor over Westfield's Mayor Raymond H. Cowing by 3637 to 3510 votes.

UPHILL FIGHT

She was still up at dawn at her home in High st., Westfield, receiving words of praise from her friends, scores of telephone calls from good-luck wishers.

"It's been a hard, uphill fight—not of months, but years," she said, "and of course it was a hectic day and night. They've been coming in droves past the house and at 3 o'clock this morning a big auto parade, with lights and

REOPEN $110,000 HUB JEWEL THEFT AFTER GANG ROUNDUP

Boston police today reopened one of the most sensational cases in their files—the unsolved $110,000 jewel robbery in the Copley Plaza Hotel in 1931.

The renewed activity followed announcement that New York police had arrested four men and one woman said to have engineered gem thefts that netted $1,000,000.

Detectives Joseph Decker and William Bonner of headquarters were assigned by Deputy Superintendent James R. Claflin to get in touch with New York authorities and start the Boston investigation all over again.

GOT $110,000 GEMS

The Boston robbery with which the gang is charged was by far the richest and most daring job engineered in the eight years during which officers say they made many rich hauls.

On July 15, 1931, Saul Landowsky, New York jewelry salesman, was preparing to leave the Copley Plaza to catch a train for New York. He had been talking to the clerk at the desk and just after 4:30 p. m. he entered his room to get his luggage.

As he shut the door behind him, a knock sounded. When he opened it, a man stepped in quietly and put a gun into his stomach, not speaking a word. Then there was another rap, and the first man admitted a second.

Without a word they motioned Landowsky to a chair, where they bound him with rope and gagged him. They went to his bed and took two trays of diamonds valued at $110,000.

WOMAN SUSPECT HELD

As they were leaving the first man spoke the only words uttered during the robbery.

"We missed you in Philly, but we got you now."

Landowsky finally attracted attention by banging on the floor with his feet. He told police he had come to Boston from Philadelphia.

A nation-wide search ensued, and Boston officers, headed by Sergt. Warren Liese, pressed the investigation for months, but no warrant was ever issued.

Detectives from the East 51st st. station in New York, who said they had been trailing the gang for a year, "cracked down' yesterday.

Arrested were brunette Dolly Turner, also known as Mrs. Dolly Stirrap, who "cased" the jobs, according to police, by selecting victims in nightc lubs and pointing them to the other members of the gang.

LONG LIST OF JOBS

Others arrested were George Stern, 44, alleged "leader" of the mob, who has been suffering from heart trouble and who was taken to Fordham Hospital, where a police guard was placed over him; Murray Lang, 38, a jewelry salesman, described by police as "fence" for the mob and who was himself kidnaped and robbed of $163,000 in gems in San Francisco last year.

Abraham Levine, 35, owner of a small Harlem jewelry store was also taken into custody as a disposer of the jewelry, and the fifth member was Raphael Stakvis, another "easer."

Other jobs police charge the gang with master-minding were such notorious thefts as the $26,000 worth of jewels taken from ex-strip tease queen de luxe Gypsy Rose Lee—now Louise Hovick—and the $94,700 Sally Milgrim robbery of March 27, 1938.

Still other jobs mentioned are the $10,000 Rimler and Horning jewelry store holdup in August, 1938; the $60,000 in gems taken from a couple leaving Ben Marden's Riviera; the $30,000 looting of the Gardel and Schafter Fifth ave. jewel store and theft of $75,000 worth of uncut stones taken from refugees a few weeks ago in Fulton st., New York.

NATALIE HAYS HAMMOND

Plan Catholic School On Hammond Estate

MAGNOLIA, Nov. 8—The palatial "Lookout Hill" estate of the late John Hays Hammond, given outright to William Cardinal O'Connell, will be converted into a school for Catholic girls, it was indicated today.

The English manor with 35 rooms and 11 baths is augmented with a tower and surrounded by 10 acres of land, the total value approximating $250,000. Long famed as a landmark overlooking Fresh Water Cove and Gloucester Harbor, it is located near the storied "Reef of Norman's Woe."

Built 32 years ago near the Gothic estate of John Hays Hammond, Jr., it has been modernized with the latest electrical and household appointments. It is ideally outfitted for a girls' school, located in a secluded and fashionable district with an extensive beach frontage.

If this is the disposition, then the students will sit in rooms that once were occupied by the great of earth, Lord Northcliffe, noted English journalist, and representing Great Britain's war cabinet when he visited it in 1917, late President Calvin Coolidge, when he was Governor of Massachusetts, the late President Taft and many others.

It was offered as a summer White House to President Herbert Hoover, but he was unable to accept it. Since the death of Hammond on June 8, 1936, the manor has not been occupied.

Cardinal O'Connell is reported to have paid a visit last week to Miss Hammond, in which the transfer of the property and the uses to which it was to be put were discussed. The Cardinal and Hammond were close friends.

Despite a severe back injury suffered only a few months ago, he ran toward the oncoming runaway, shouting to the children to keep out of the street.

'I'm Still Here,' Dowd Retort

"Well, I'm still here, am I not?"

That was Sheriff John F. Dowd's answer today to the suggestion that this was the day named in persistent rumors circulating through Suffolk County legal circles as the one on which he was to resign.

The Bar Association is charging Dowd with extortion.

"Unless I'm shown something more definite over the week-end," he said from his office at the jail, "than anything I've seen in the papers, I'll be in court Monday morning. I reiterate my previous statements.

"As far as I'm concerned this is a fight to the end."

It was still asserted, however, that he would resign.

Death Wins Battle Over Stricken Girl

LOWELL, Nov. 8—A rare type of paralysis today choked 16-year-old Anna McNamara to death, despite the girl's brave fight to keep breathing and a seven-hour battle by firemen and hospital internes to save her life.

Working in relays, a score of men applied artificial respiration, but even as they struggled they could see the girl's smile of courage fade, while she slipped into unconsciousness, then into death which ended hours of agony.

She had collapsed while at her classes in Lowell high school and was taken to the home of her parents in a semi-conscious condition. Doctors advised her removal to the hospital and shortly after 5 o'clock when she reached there, internes were ordered to apply artificial respiration.

Physicians found the girl was suffering from paralysis of the respiratory organs. It caused an obstruction in her throat which prohibited the use of mechanical respiration, although a respirator was brought by automobile from Andover and an expert, Herbert Tracey of Woburn, roared over the road to Lowell behind a police escort prepared to operate it. But at 12:15 a. m. she died.

Court Weighs 'Stepping Out'

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 8 (AP)—It's up to a jury to determine whether "stepping out," as used by Actor Jackie Coogan, means what Mr. Webster says it does, or something else.

Coogan is being sued for $30,000 by Princess Luana, entertainer, who charges her character was defamed. She says Coogan saw her walk into a night club with his stepfather, Arthur Bernstein, and remarked:

"He (Bernstein) is stepping out with Luana and my mother probably is waiting for him at home."

She complained that "stepping out," referring to a married man and a single woman, implied an illicit relationship. Coogan, asking dismissal, contended it meant what the dictionary says, i. e., "to go on foot beyond a boundary."

The judge said there might be two sides to the question and ordered Coogan's counsel to proceed with preparations for trial.

Brookline Couple Married 50 Years

Abraham L. and Ada Brest of Parkman st., Brookline, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Nov. 12 at their home. They have three sons, Ephraim of Brookline, Aaron of Franklin and Joseph of Nantasket; two daughters, Sarah Brest Malatsky of Brookline and Lillian Brest Oppenheim of Brockton, and seven grandchildren.

Everberg Gets Kimball's Job

Governor Saltonstall today nominated Representative Gustave W. Everberg of Woburn to be superintendent of state buildings to succeed Fred H. Kimball, 69, of Haverhill, who is retiring.

If confirmed by the Executive Council, Everberg would receive a starting salary of $3785 a year. Kimball, who has been superintendent since 1921, was paid $4500.

Everberg, long active in Republican politics, was one of the administration leaders in the House during the past session. He is a tailor by trade.

Reveal Rothermere In Kingmaker Role

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP)—A suit by Princess Stefanie Hohenlohe-Waldenberg against Lort Rothermere, the publisher, for breach of contract under which she asserts she was to receive 5000 pounds (about $20,000) a year for acting as his special political representative in Europe, was heard today.

Counsel for the former wife of a Hungarian prince said Lord Rothermere "told the princess in 1927 that he had decided to work for the restoration of the Hohenzollern and Hapsburg dynasties. He wanted to be a modern Warwick—the kingmaker — and work on the European rather than the English field."

Princess Hohenlohe

Later, the counsel said the princess "rejected an idea that was put forward that Lord Rothermere's son, Esmond, should be suggested as the King of Hungary."

Other highlights in her attorney's arguments were:

She obtained from Adolf Hitler in 1934 an invitation for Lord Rothermere to visit him in Berlin.

"Lord Rothermere had a royal reception and told her that Hitler would make her a duchess."

The accounts showed that over a period of five and one-half years Lord Rothermere paid the princess £46,000 (about $185,000.)

A "heated discussion" when Lord Rothermere was aparently suggesting he was goin to drop her as an employe ended "with Lord Rothermere telling her he would pay her £5000 for the rest of her life."

MET IN 1925

The 43-year-old princess testified she met the 71-year-old Lord Rothermere about 1925 and interested him in the cause of Hungary at a luncheon in Monte Carlo.

"He told me there was very little news in his paper (the Daily Mail) and said he would be grateful for any original ideas," she asserted.

Lord Rothermere is a brother of the late Lord Northcliffe, British newspaper magnate.

Together they practically revolutionized British newspapers, with Rothermere handling the financial transactions.

In 1927-28 Rothermere espoused the cause of Hungary and made efforts to get the treaty of Trianon revised.

Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the Fascist British Blackshirt organization, received Rothermere's support in 1934. The publisher was severely criticized in many quarters for this.

Princess Stephanie, Nee Richter, was born in Vienna and married Prince Francis of Hohenlohe-Waldenburg Schillingsfuerst in London in 1914. They had one son and were divorced in 1920. For many years she lived in France.

Two Hunters Lost In Adirondack Area

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP)—The hunt for two persons missing in the Adirondack forest area intensified today when Governor Lehman ordered state police into the search for Ronald Terry, 30-year-old Elmira hunter, lost since Sunday near Spruce lake.

Meantime troopers searched near Schroon lake for Kenneth Paige, 30, missing since yesterday afternoon.

MORE ADMIT GUILT IN LOTTERY DRIVE

With 13 men already arraigned before Federal Judge Hugh D. McClellan, Asst. U. S. Atty. Jackson J. Holtz today announced further arrests in connection with the $20,000,000 Gold Bond lottery indictments.

Of 72 men indicted, 38 now either have surrendered or have been arrested by federal authorities. Three men were taken into custody in Chicago. Each of those indicted is charged with use of the mails to defraud, interstate transportation of lottery matter, mailing lottery matter and conspiracy.

Ten of 13 New England men indicted entered pleas of guilty on at least one of the three charges against each. The following pleaded guilty to all three counts:

Earl Howard, 44, Myrtle st., Fitchburg; Buford D. Cobb, 37, Iron Hill st., East Weymouth; George H. Hansel, 43, Central st., Stoneham; Patrick J. McMahon, Pearl st., Middleboro; William J. Roper, 52, Highland ave., Needham Heights; Milton Gumins, 54, Buffalo, N. Y., and Edgar Fournier, 39, Biddeford, Me.

Pleading innocent of using the mails to defraud, but guilty of the other charges, was Edward Donlon, 68, of Prospect st., New Haven, Ct.; Ven D. Huard, 32, of Prospect st., Methuen, pleaded guilty to conspiracy but not guilty of the other two charges; William Vallon, 43, New Haven, pleaded not guilty of using the mails to defraud but guilty on the other charges.

Louis G. Raymond, 45, Lebanon Springs, N. Y.; Julio Almeida, 42, barber, of New Bedford, and Peter Coughlin, 42, of High st., Medford, pleaded innocent of all three charges. Bail ranged up to $4000.

Fishermen Start 7th Day of Strike

GLOUCESTER, Nov. 8—Five hundred fishermen of the Atlantic Fishermen's Union, having voted solidly against a compromise proposal by 34 boat owners, today began the seventh day of their strike. The fishermen, so far, have refused to submit their demands to a neutral board of arbitration.

Having caused the first strike here in 30 years, the fishermen insist that the boat owners pay for all costs of replacements of fishing gear and of the liability insurance involved.

Dedicate Memorial To Brisbane

Special to Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—A large group of friends and relatives gathered at Fifth ave. and 101st st. for the dedication of the memorial erected there in memory of Arthur Brisbane, one of the most famous editors of his time.

The memorial, 7 feet high and 15 feet long, carries a medallion, to the right of which is the inscription:

"Arthur Brisbane, 1864-1936. American editor and patriot. He spread before all a panorama of the events of his time. He was the champion of work and peace before all mankind. He gave to the people a clear understanding of the history of all ages. He imparted to millions an appreciation and love of the literature, arts and religion which have ennobled the world."

Brisbane's daughters, Eleanor, 15, and Alice, 17, pulled the cord that unveiled the memorial. Near by stood Brisbane's three-year-old grandson, Michael McCrary, and Mayor La Guardia.

Among the relatives and friends present were Mrs. Arthur Brisbane, the widow; their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Reagan McCrary; Richard E. Berlin, executive vice-president and manager of the Hearst magazines; Merrill Meigs, publisher of the Chicago Herald-American; Mortimer Berkowitz, president of the American Weekly; Bernard Gimbel, William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors; Gene Tunney and Mrs. Geoffrey Konta, her two daughters and their husbands.

Charles S. Banks Dies in Philippines

MANILA, Nov. 8 (AP)—Charles Sumner Banks, 62, who came to the Philippines in 1900 as a United States government scientific and became one of the most widely-known Americans in the islands, died today after a brief illness. He was a native of Washington, D. C.

SEN. LODGE IN APPEAL FOR PEACE

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 8—The Roosevelt administration regrets the American recognition of Communist Russia.

This was the belief expressed by U. S. Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., in an address here in which he attacked the inconsistencies of the New Deal and appealed for true American neutrality.

"While we hate Hitlerism we love Americanism more," he told more than 400 members of the Plymouth County Republican Club in Memorial Hall, "we must control our sentiments and emotions and keep out of war.

"Our safety is not involved. No power and no combination of powers could successfully attack us."

Sen. Lodge urged an increased army and navy, asserting also that his experience with the National Guard last summer indicated the "woeful inadequacy" of that branch.

He pointed to American youth, which he described as "the nation's most serious problem." Boys and girls of good will, ability and talent, he said, had no opportunity to prove their worth.

Here are some of the "inconsistencies" of the New Deal listed by Sen. Lodge:

The plowing under of crops while new areas were irrigated for reclamation.

Increased wages and shorter hours in this country while tariffs were lowered to permit competition with European sweatshop labor.

Encouragement of labor to organize while corporations, or unions of producers, were condemned.

BOIES PENROSE LOSES

F. R. Hints Red 'Plot' In Browder Speech

HYDE PARK, Nov. 8 (AP)—White House sources represented President Roosevelt yesterday as believing that Earl Browder had raised a question as to whether he and the American Communist party were conspiring against the American government.

To this question, made by persons close to President Roosevelt on the basis of a speech by Browder in Boston Sunday night, the Communist leader retorted in New York:

"The greatest danger for the American people is the threat to muzzle them, which is contained in the statement of the 'close friend' of the President."

Browder asserted it was "not clear" whether the White House expression had been based on "what I actually said or the forgery in the New York Times and (New York) Herald Tribune, which constructed a new speech for me which I did not deliver."

Asked at a press conference whether he has read the Browder speech, the President said he had seen only the headlines.

However, persons in a position to interpret his views said it was difficult to draw a definite line between the words "quick transition"—as used in the Browder speech in connection with a transition to socialism in this country—and "revolution."

"The President's 'close friend'," Browder said in a statement, "expresses his perturbation about my use of the phrase 'quick transition,' thus following the line of thought of the Herald Tribune editorial of today. That is precisely the phrase reported entirely out of its context by the New York Times and others, although they had the exact text in their hands.

The Hyde Park sources represented Mr. Roosevelt as feeling that if it should be held that "quick transition" was the parlor term for revolution, then Browder and his party might be held guilty of conspiracy against the government.

When there was brought up the question as to what the courts would hold, it went unanswered. Nor was there any information as to whether the U. S. government was inquiring into the implications of the Browder speech for the purpose of determining whether any action should be taken against him or the U. S. Communist party.

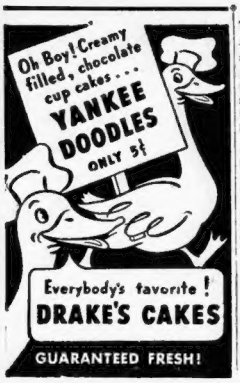
Snow Cruiser Flops Again



PAVILION, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP)—The Byrd expedition's ill-starred Antarctic snow cruiser broke down again today at the junction of Routes 63 and 20, in Genesee County, and Corp. T. F. Martin of Avon state police sub-station said "nobody seems to know when they'll get it started again."

First reports, Corp. Martin said, were that the right front wheel brake had "frozen," but later word was the huge machine's motors were in trouble.

The 75,000-pound monster had been expected to reach Avon, N. Y., at noon after leaving Hamburg, N. Y., at dawn today.

OIL BLAST KILLS 10

BUCHAREST, Nov. 8 (AP)—Ten men were killed and ten injured today in an explosion, which caused heavy damage to an American-owned oil refinery at Teleaje, near Ploesti, north of Bucharest. Estimates of the damage ran as high as $1,500,000.

BRIDE TO-BE soon is Patricia Morrison, film starlet, who'll wed Harry Wile, vaudevillian.

Two Couples Face Jury For Swapping Mates

RUSSELLVILLE, Ala., Nov. 8 (AP)—The State arranged to open its case today against two men and two women accused of exchanging consorts, children, mules and 80 acres.

County Solicitor W. H. Key said a Franklin circuit jury would hear charges of wife-swapping against Will D. Johnson, 36; his wife, Annie Fay Johnson, 29; Odell Brand, 32, and his wife, Delia Brand, 29, all of Red Bay, Ala.

Key said the couples drove to Fulton, Miss., in one automobile and were re-married Feb. 24, the same day divorce decrees were granted the women with the provision they not re-marry within 60 days.

After the marriages became known, the decrees were set aside and bigamy charges placed, the solicitor declared.

Police Chief L. A. Jackson of Red Bay said Annie Fay Johnson, who married Brand, told him she and her second husband received two mules and a deed to 80 acres from Johnson. In return Johnson and Della Brand obtained custody of two of the five Brand children.

Johnson had two children by his first wife.

The couples have not lived together since their release under bond last May, Solicitor Key reported.

"The womenfolk have been taking care of the children," he said.

CALIFORNIA, OHIO SWAMP 'HAM AND EGG' PENSIONS

Pension plans combining increased grants to the aged with unorthodox methods of raising the money were rejected yesterday by top-heavy majorities in California and Ohio.

In other off-year elections, New York voters sanctioned pari-mutuel race betting and gave Tammany control of county jobs, while Kentucky chose a Democratic governor. None of the contests for office held nationwide political significance.

Ohio ballots snowed under the pension proposal advocated by Herbert S. Bigelow, Cincinnati clergyman, to assure income of $50 a month to those past 60. The plan which called for a state income tax and a levy on valuable real estate, was defeated by a margin of more than 3 to 1.

Returns from 8930 of 8589 precincts gave 418,078 for the pension plan and 1,393,615 against it.

PLAN FURTHER FIGHT

Opponents contended that the vote showed Ohio "would not be deluded by suggestions of this kind," but Bigelow announced a new proposal even before all the ballots killing the old one were counted.

The California returns buried the "Ham and Eggs" pension program by a tremendous margin, but there, too, sponsors said a further fight was planned. The proposition would have paid the unemployed past 50 up to $30 a week, and would have been financed by a system of state script.

The proposal trailed in every county, even Los Angeles county — its birthplace—turning in almost a 2 to 1 total against it.

Reports from 10,176 of 11,165 precincts showed 831,310 votes for the plan and 1,621,751 against.

Pension leaders declared they would start a recall movement against Gov. Culbert L. Olson, who fought the plan. They contended that he had been elected by "Ham and Eggers" last year.

Voters' interest centered on contests for public office in the other states where elections were held.

In Kentucky, Gov. Keen Johnson, Democrat, was elected to the office he reached through the recent resignation of Gov. A. B. Chandler, who entered the Senate. His Republican opponent was Circuit Judge King Swope.

TAMMANY TRIUMPHS

A Tammany triumph in county races in New York City marked a change of sentiment in the Metropolis, where the organization had been losing in recent years.

New York Republicans were victorious, however, in an upstate Congressional race. Edwin Arthur Hall, Republican, defeated John V. Johnson, Democrat and American Labor Party, in a contest to succeed the late Rep. Lord (R), New York.

In Pennsylvania, Boies Penrose, 2d, Republican, trailed John E. Sheridan, Democrat, for the unexpired term in Congress of Rep. Daly (D.) of Pa. Penrose is a nephew of the late Sen. Boies Penrose.

In South Carolina, Mrs. Thomas S. McMillan held a long lead in the race to succeed her late husband, Rep. McMillan (D.) of S. C. The House has only four women members.

The only statewide issue in New York's election was the proposal to permit machine wagering at the five horse race tracks in the state. Heretofore, such wagering has been placed with bookmakers. The vote favoring pari-mutuels was better than two to one.

The Philadelphia mayoral race, won by Robert E. Lamberton, Republican, attracted particular attention for that reason. Lamberton defeated Robert C. White, Democrat, and his partisans acclaimed the victory as pointing the way to a Republican victory in the state next year.

Philadelphia is traditionally Republican, however, and Democratic leaders regarded the race as having no general significance.

GOVERNOR Herbert H. Lehman of New York and his wife as they cast their vote in the state elections.

Mattapan Mothers Back Peace Drive

Sentry Posts and Patrol groups were being rapidly organized today by Mattapan women who said they were determined that no other section in Greater Boston would make a better showing in the drive for members of the National Legion of Mothers of America which seeks to keep the United States out of war.

A strategy group of six met to map out a neighborhood campaign. They were Mrs. Mary Kennedy, Osceola st., Mrs. Alva Kinnear, Friendship rd., Mrs. Margaret Shea, Osceola st., Mrs. Cora Aronne, Osceola st., Mrs. Olga Legg, Friendship rd., and Mrs. Sarah Devine, Osceola st.

Mrs. Catherine Urquart of Woodlawn ave., Mattapan, distributed 100 pledge cards yesterday and called for an additional 100 today. She said her neighbors were eager to join a movement that opposed sending American youth to fight Europe's battles.

All gave vivid accounts of their anxiety in World War days and hoped they would be spared from undergoing such a horror again. Nearly all had husbands or brothers who served in the last war. Mrs. Kinnear said her husband is reluctant to refer to his experiences of 18 months service in France. They have a son, Alva, 18, who Mrs. Kinnear doesn't want to be subjected to the experiences his father had in a foreign land.

The success attained by Greater Boston organizers in recruiting members for the Legion of Mothers was reported in Florida, according to a letter sent to Mrs. Hannah M. Connors, "Patrol Mother," of Milton, by Mrs. Bess Arnitz of Fort Lauderdale. Mrs. Arnitz said friends had told her of the effective work being done by the women of Boston and New England in the mobilization of mothers and wanted to know how she and other women in Florida could help.

HUB WOMEN GRATEFUL

The women of Boston were surprised and grateful to learn their efforts had been so widely-heralded. They also received commendation from Mrs. Frances Sherrill in California, who, with Mrs. Mary Ireland and Mrs. Mary Sheldon, founded the Legion of Mothers.

All three are Los Angeles mothers, with sons of military age. Mrs. Ireland has two sons in military service; Mrs. Sherrill, a former teacher, has four sons of military age, and Mrs. Sheldon has one son. Mrs. Sherrill wrote to the Boston organizers from the Legion of Mothers headquarters, 1577 Cross Roads of the World, 6671 Sunset blvd., Hollywood.

The slogans of the Legion of Mothers are:

1—To oppose the sending of American soldiers to fight on foreign soil.

2—To support a strong program for adequate national defense.

3—To combat all "isms" whose object is the destruction of the American form of government.

War Goods, Toys Mingle in Cargoes

A Swedish skipper plotting his course to avoid the English, and a British skipper avoiding the Germans; torpedoes loaded onto one vessel and Christmas toys unloaded from another—

That was the contrasting picture presented on the Boston waterfront today.

At the Army Base the Swedish freighter Garthon was loading 3400 tons of pig iron.

"I'm only afraid of the English," Capt. Wilhelm Oberg said. "When I get in the North Sea they'll take me into port and take my cargo. I got to miss their patrols."

ESCAPED TORPEDOES

Alongside the Garthon the British freighter Barrwhin was also loading pig iron. Her captain was laying out his course to avoid German submarines.

The Berrwhin was the British freighter that narrowly escaped going to the bottom when a submarine unleashed a torpedo at her in the British channel as she came to America.

Capt. L. D. Watkins of the American freighter Mormscsul, also in at the base with 8800 tons of cocoa, coffee, and so on—a "boom-time cargo"—said that German vessels interned in South American ports were slaping out day by day.

Waiting on the quay were three 8300-pound torpedoes consigned from the Portsmouth navy yard for the American freighter Sage Brush, due to arrive tomorrow to transfer the munitions to the Mare Island navy yard in California.

HERE WITH CHRISTMAS TOYS

In East Boston the Japanese freighter Kongo Maru was unloading 500 tons of Christmas toys for Boston children.

Nearby the brand new Dutch freighter Bantam, 9600 tons, on her first voyage, 33 days out of Dutch East Indies, was unloading liquid latex for Boston. Her crew was vastly interested in the peace proposals made by their Queen, and very hopeful of their success.

Insurance Ring Killer Given Life

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8 (AP)—Samuel Sortino, 36-year-old defendant in Philadelphia's insurance murders case, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for complicity in the drowning five years ago of Raffaele Caruso.

He was the third to be sentenced of 13 persons who have pleaded guilty or have been convicted.

STEEL CO. LOSES APPEAL

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8 (AP)—A national relations board order directing Republic Steel Corporation to rehire 5 CIO Ohio workers involved in the "little steel" strike of 1937 was upheld today by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The corporation had asked the court to set aside the order, issued by the board Oct. 18, 1938.

The ruling of the Court of Appeals would require the corporation to provide back pay for strikers who were not returned to their jobs. At the time the case was argued in the court, company counsel estimated such payments might amount to $7,000,000.

The payment is required under the board's original order which directed the corporation to rehire the striking employes within five days after they applied for reinstatement or pay them wages from that time.

Check Up Homes Of Hub Firemen

Fire Commissioner Arthur W. Reilly today began a personal check on the residences of 39 Boston firemen who, the Commissioner said he had been informed, have been living outside the city limits.

The commissioner had set today as the deadline for all Boston firemen to conform, with his ruling that they must live within the city proper.

Members of the department found living in other cities and towns will be immediately suspended, Commissioner Reilly declared.

Borah Assails F. D. Over Ship Swap Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—The controversy over proposed transfer of eight American merchant ships to Panamanian registry appeared to be growing today despite President Roosevelt's order to the Maritime Commission to hold up a decision.

Senator Borah (R.) of Idaho promptly took issue with a presidential comment to reporters at Hyde Park, N. Y., that neutrality questions are not involved.

"Suppose Panama, in spite of her great navy, fails to protect these ships and they are sunk?" Borah asked in a statement. "Will we not go to the protection of Panama?

"Panama, from a viewpoint of national defense, is a part of the United States. Besides, she comes under the good neighbor policy and the Monroe Doctrine."

The Senator, who took a leading part in the fight against the new neutrality law, called the proposal "manifestly a subterfuge" to evade provisions in the act forbidding American ships from entering belligerent ports. The eight vessels owned by the United States Lines, have been in Transatlantic service, and could continue on that route if sold to a foreign corporation.

Mr. Roosevelt expressed the belief yesterday that the United States could not be involved in an international incident if one of the transferred vessels was sunk while flying the Panamanian flag.

He pointed out that no Americans, under the neutrality law, could serve as officers or crew members of ships entering western European waters. Futhermore, he said, any American has a right to sell property or transfer its title to a neutral.

The President said, though, that he had asked the Maritime Commission for a delay so that he could check personally on the relation of the proposed sale to defense plans and to foreign shipping competition.

VICTIM of bandit who handed her death threat note, then robbed her of $13, was Miss Frances Rosenfield, 23, of Dorchester, clerk in a Roxbury cleaners' store.

When War Comes U. S. Liberties Go!

By RAYMOND KNOTTS

Copyright, 1939, by the Chicago Herald-American

What about your individual rights, if we go to war? You won't have many.

The government is prepared to decide for you—

What things you can and cannot have to eat and drink and wear;

What prices you shall pay for things you are allowed to buy;

What prices you shall receive if you have things to sell;

What rent you sall pay;

What price you shall pay if you decide to buy a house;

Whether or not you may build a house or anything else;

What stocks and bonds you may buy or sell;

What you may hear on the radio;

What you may read about the war and its prosecution;

What you may write or publish;

What you may SAY;

Where you may go, and when;

When and how much you may use your automobile;

What job you shall work at;

What wages you shall receive;

How many hours a day and a week you shall work;

How much electric light and cooking gas you may use.

REGULATIONS GALORS

And of course if war should come to this continent, through the air or over the sea, you would also be put under dozens of additional regulations. You would have to carry a gas mask, keep your lights turned out or your windows covered at night, scurry into bomb shelters at a given signal, and so on and on and on, as they do now in London and Paris and Berlin.

But the other restrictions I have listed would go into effect, most of them, as soon as war was declared.

The government would decide what you could buy to put on our back or into your stomach through its control over those who produce things, and those who sell them. The industrial mobilization plan pamphlet says:

"Reduction of non-essential industries or partial conversion to more useful purposes may be considered necessary to divert their effort into the most essential channels."

Industries producing lots of things you like to have will certainly be considered non-essential by the government and reduced or suspended.

Also the plan calls for the licensing of retail dealers. They'll sell what they're told. They won't sell anything the government considers non-essentials even if they're able to get it. If they do they'll be put out of business.

PRICES UNDER CONTROL

Price control is a part of the plan. It is not intended, at least at first, to control all prices, but to begin with food, clothing, rent and other absolute necessities.

Price fixing can go on from there to include everthing in commerce. The price control commission will have absolute power.

Prices will be fixed, you understand, not only for things you buy but also for things you sell. Farmers will be told how much they can charge for their wheat, corn, hogs, cattle, chickens, butter, eggs, milk.

The government has plenty of authority to fix prices in wartime, Prof. Edwin F. Albertsworth, Northwestern University constitutional law authority, points out. The Lever act, World War price control law, was upheld, in the main by the Supreme Court.

Nazi Ship Reported Seized by Finland

HELSINKI, Nov 8 (AP)—Usually reliable sources reported today that Finland had seized a German ship, identified as the Blumenthal, in territorial waters off Finland's southern coast.

Finnish authorities declined to confirm the report, which followed closely the alleged seizure by Germany of the 1290-ton Finnish ship Otava while carying a cargo of woodpulp to England.

Britain Hints It Has Secret Terror Weapon

LONDON, Nov. 8 (INS) — A grim warning that Britain has a surprise in store for Germany—possibly a secret weapon of terrible potentialities — was openly voiced today by Britain's director of scientific research.

Commenting at a London press conference on reports of a secret German weapon, the director said:

"Don't imagine there is going to be no surprise from the enemy in this war . . . because we have certainly got one for him.

"There are certain methods of warfare which have not been adopted, perhaps because of humane considerations.

"But that reservation might break down, and Britain must be prepared."

CALL UP BELGIAN RESERVES

BRUSSELS, Nov. 8 (INS) Belgian reserves have been called to the colors, the national defense ministry announced today. Officials said the measure was "purely precautionary."

Military authorities requisitioned all motor buses in Brussels and Antwerp. At the same time, the defense ministry published suggestions to be followed by the civilian population in the event of air raids

Germans Intensify Activities on West Wall

PARIS, Nov. 8 (INS) Germany intensified her military activity along the entire front today and at the same time greatly increased her aerial activity.

The Germans launched three heavy raids against the French front line defenses, the first in the region immediately east of the Moselle the second about 15 miles east of the Moselle and the third on the east side of the Orenthal salient.

The second and third attacks were preceded by artillery barrages of 30 minutes' duration

For the first time in several days important movements were reported behind the German lines, apparently the most intensified near the Netherlands frontier, while French observers expect a German attack may be only a matter of days

Last night and early this morning anti-aircraft fire was heard on the outskirts of Paris

City of Flint Still Remains in Bergen

BERGEN, Nov. 8 (AP) The American freighter City of Flint, recently released from a German prize crew by the Norwegian government, will remain here several days, it was reported today.

The United States minister, Mrs J. Borden Harriman, called meanwhile on the British naval attache presumably to continue negotiations in regard to disposition of the vessel's cargo.

U. S. Lines Advertise For British Seamen

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP)—The United States Lines advertised today for British seamen and officers to serve on vessels sailing between the United States, France and Britain.

"Vacancies exist for deck officers, engineers, electricians, machinists and chief stewards," the advertisement said.

Britain Seizes Nazi Ship Off Africa

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP)—The 7603-ton German freighter Uhenfels has been captured and taken to Freetown, Sierra Leone, British colony on the west coast of Africa, it was disclosed today.

BELGIANS BUY BUSES

LONDON, Nov. 8 (INS)—Belgian authorities today requisitioned buses and numerous motor coaches for a secret purpose, according to a Reuters dispatch from Brussels.

PEACE BID KILLED BY BRITAIN, NAZIS DECLARE

some hours before the Wilhelmina-Leopold peace and mediation offer was received in London.)

In any case, German officials declared, the offer came too late in the wake of Adolf Hitler's own peace offer in his speech to the Reichstag "which was brutally rejected by England."

"If there are any further doubts of England's intentions," a spokesman said, "one need only call attention to Lord Halifax's spontaneous torpedo last night. His broadcast was made after he had received the bid from Belgium and Holland."

These same quarters emphasized the "extraordinarily swift rejection of the offer by London" and significantly renewed criticism of Holland's failure to defend her neutrality in a firmer fashion against alleged violations involved in Britain's blockade.

"The English seem particularly to feel at home in certain neutral countries," the spokesman said. "It doesn't seem to matter how much the English interfere or what any king and queen may say.

"We hope that England's cynical answer on this occasion will make an impression.

HITLER TO SPEAK

"We must say again that when England steps on their toes, the neutrals should do a little more than just laugh it off."

Hitler, now in Munich, is to make a private speech to Nazi veterans tonight on the anniversary of the famous 1923 "beer cellar putsch." It was regarded unlikely that his remarks would be made public.

Germany originally planned to defer publication of official reaction to the peace bid until Britain and France had made formal replies. The first impression in Berlin was favorable, although officials expressed doubt of its eventual success.

It was considered significant that the peace initiative of the Dutch and Belgian rulers received secondary attention in the German press.

HALIFAX ASSAILED

Front pages were reserved for the speech of British Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, who declared yesterday that Britain is fighting to maintain the "rule of law."

A headline published over a commentary by the official German news agency DNB called Lord Halifax's address "arrogant and deceitful."

The commentary itself called the aims expressed by Lord Halifax a "policy of intrigues aiming at robbery . . . baseless deceit . . . and dreary propaganda phrases."

DNB declared that Lord Halifax "ought to be familiar with the brutality of British colonial policy" and charged that he "had the audacity to speak of elementary human rights and of tolerance in relations between human beings."

It also stated that the "vague outlines" of the allied war aims described by Lord Halifax "would prove of little attraction to all those nations which for 20 years had to suffer under the Versailles system."

French See Nazi Threat Behind New Peace Offer

By KENNETH T. DOWNS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Nov. 8 —"More German blackmail" was the militant French reaction today to the plea for peace and mediation offer addressed to France, Britain and Germany by Queen Wilhelmina of Holland and Leopold, king of the Belgians.

Informed French quarters commented that the Dutch-Belgian move throws light on what was described as the strongest possible undercover pressure brought to bear upon Belgium and Holland by Germany.

SEE NAZI PRESSURE

Reliable quarters indicated their belief that the German pressure even took the form of a virtual ultimatum to the Belgian and Dutch governments, and that this was backed up by a threat of invasion against Holland.

(Yesterday the Agence Belga of Brussels reported German shock troops, seasoned by the campaign in Poland, had been stationed at The Netherlands frontier. This report capped rumors that Germany might move against England and France by way of Holland and Belgium or both.

(On Monday, H. R. Knickerbocker reported in an exclusive Paris dispatch that a German communication "in the nature of an ultimatum" had been sent to Brussels, warning Belgium that any new commitments with Holland or any other nation, would be regarded by Berlin as an "unfriendly act."

(This report was quickly followed by the meeting of Wilhelmina and Leopold at The Hague and announcement of their peace appeal.)

One highly placed source said the real reason for The Hague meeting was to decide necessary action if Holland alone were invaded by Germany.

PEACE IS DOUBTFUL

Leopold for two years had pressed Wilhelmina for a defensive agreement with Belgium, but the Queen declined for fear of damaging Holland's neutrality status. But, it was asserted, the elderly Queen this time approached Leopold in the role of petitioner.

Informed circles said that while the "precarious position" of the two small neutral nations was fully realized, the joint Dutch-Belgian action has not changed the fundamental point of view of the Anglo-French allies, who remain determined to continue the war until the Nazis are removed from power in Germany.

French Fire On 2 Planes

PARIS, Nov. 8 (AP)—Two unidentified planes were reported by military sources today to have been fired upon when they dropped propaganda leaflets on the Paris region in early morning darkness yesterday.

The leaflets bore parts of the Oct. 31 speech by Soviet Russian Premier-Vyacheslaff Molotoff in which he notified the world that Russia was drawing closer to Germany.

Nazis Claim Five Allied Planes Downed

BERLIN, Nov. 8 (INS)—Five allied warplanes were shot down in air battles yesterday over German territory, an official German war communique stated today adding that activity on the western front had increased.

Here's luxury and thrift together!

TOBACCO'S temperamental! Its elements of flavor and aroma are delicate...fragile.

Fast-burning cigarettes can't yield either comfort or delicate taste. They taste... well, like anything but a good cigarette.

Camel's slow-burning, costlier tobaccos give you the luxury of milder, cooler, more fragrant and flavorous smoking.

And that luxury not only doesn't cost you more...it costs you less! Simple arithmetic shows you how slow burning also gives you the equivalent of 5 extra smokes per pack! (See panel at right.)

A prominent scientific laboratory recently made impartial tests on 16 of the largest-selling cigarette brands. They found that CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of A cake of soap for an American Beauty...

"Toilet soap—can now be sold only for the use of babies and physicians."
—TIME, October 16, 1939

Where does that leave YOU, Mrs. America? Yes, this is only a war measure in a dictatorship. But it is a very fine example of EFFICIENCY for any government. One good strong soap for all purposes!

After all, there's no good reason for white soaps, pink soaps, plain soaps and scented ones. No good reason except one. You, my dear lady, want them!

That blessed right of yours to choose what you want is worth fighting for!

And for over 50 years Good Housekeeping has been fighting this good fight for you.

Even here in America there are those who would require you to take what they think you should have instead of what you want. They are not willing to put the facts and the merchandise before you and let you decide for yourself.

Good Housekeeping opposes this—violently and bitterly.

Good Housekeeping Magazine believes in the competence of the American woman.

Good Housekeeping believes that she needs protection from fraud, from misleading advertising and, most of all, protection from the busybodies who want to tell her:

"It is more efficient to have all your dresses the same cut. It is more economical to have ugly but durable furniture. It is more sensible to regiment you and make you conform to strict rules."

THIS IS THE WAY WE SEE IT-...

In our editorial pages, month by month, we bring you authentic news of all that is new. Let the critics rage that a fluffy new powder puff or a fancy new streamlined iron are fripperies and vanities. But we will defend you to the last in your right to choose from a vast variety and style of goods honestly made, honestly presented—both in Good Housekeeping's advertising and editorial pages.

We have spent a million dollars in Good Housekeeping testing laboratories during the last 5 years to separate the impractical, the unworkable, the fraudulent or dangerous product from the good, the new, the "nice" and desirable one.

We expect to go on spending money doing this—to go on giving seals of approval to eligible merchandise—and to fight for your right to exercise your own good judgment and your own good sense in selecting what pleases you as against being forced to select what pleases some policeman or minion of a misguided dictatorship.

ELECTION RESULTS FROM CITIES OUTSIDE BOSTON

With Westfield making history in choosing the first woman mayor in Massachusetts, mayors went back into office in 16 cities today save for surprising upsets in Newton and Lynn.

Perhaps the biggest casualty was veteran Mayor Edwin O. Childs of Newton, incumbent in that office for 20 years, who went down to defeat by only 90 votes before Paul M. Goddard, lawyer and member of the Legislature.

Mayor J. Fred Manning of Lynn found himself out of office for the first time in 10 years, with Sen. Albert Cole the victor by 997 votes. The result was not entirely an upset since Cole defeated Manning by 400 votes for the Democratic nomination, but Republican strength usually accorded the long-term mayor, failed to materialize.

In Lowell, the only city in which a chief executive did not seek re-election, youthful George T. Ashe, 34-year-old Democrat, was winner over a former mayor, Thomas H. Braden. Ashe was leader against the soldiers' preference in the last Legislature.

Mayor John W. Lyons killed the attempted return to politics of former Mayor Richard M. Russell and in Somerville, Mayor John M. Lynch was re-elected by more than 13,000 votes, the largest majority in the city's history.

Cambridge

Victory of Mayor John W. Lyons in Cambridge today may have sealed the political fate of former Mayor and Congressman Richard M. Russell.

Russell suffered his third defeat in three campaigns by a margin of 6407 votes, with Lyons winning the greatest victory since the days of Mayor Edward W. Quinn. Russell was defeated last year in his try for the Democratic nomination for Governor and previously lost to Congressman Robert Luce for his former congressional post.

In a city referendum, Cambridge voters approved the Federal Housing program by a vote of 16,853 to 12,093. The vote was watched throughout the nation, since Mayor Lyons recently turned down the offer of $4,500,000 in federal housing funds.

Somerville

His political future appeared bright today to Mayor John M. Lynch, re-elected Somerville's chief executive by the biggest majority in the city's history.

Mayor Lynch received 24,434 votes, decisively defeating Sen. Eugene H. Giroux, who polled 11,153.

All the city's present board of aldermen were returned to office save James M. Redmond, who ran anti-administration in the primaries. He ran last in the election.

Medford

Despite a $3 jump in the tax rate, Mayor John C. Carr, Democrat, was returned victor over Rep. Robert P. Campbell, 11,535 to 9980.

Campbell was but one in a long succession of legislators who found the jump to the mayor's chair too long.

It was Medford's first partisan primary and election and the board of aldermen chosen was Republican seven to four.

Lynn

Strong Republican support hitherto accorded Lynn's veteran mayor, J. Fred Manning, was credited today for the upset victory of youthful Sen. Albert Cole, winner by 997 votes.

Sen. Cole defeated Manning by 400 votes for the Democratic nomination but political observers had believed he could not cope with the usual Republican strength enjoyed by Manning in the 10 years he had held office.

Lowell

A militant fight waged against veterans' preference in the last Legislature—an issue which many a solon handled with kid gloves—failed to affect the mayoralty chances of George T. Ashe, 34, returned victor over former Mayor Thomas H. Braden. He won by 2000 votes.

Lowell was the only city which did not see her mayor run for re-election, with Mayor Dewey Archambault declining the issue.

Newton

Aldermen elected at large were John E. Barwise and Richard H. Lee, in Ward 1; Albert P. Everets and Carl F. Schipper, Jr., in Ward 2; Maxwell P. Gaddis and Robert A. Whidden, in Ward 3; Charles E. Hughes and Charles B. Floyd, in Ward 4; Donald D. McKay and John Temperley, in Ward 5; Joseph B. Jamieson and Henderson Inches, in Ward 6; Clarence C. Colby and George E. Rawson in Ward 7.

Francis P. Frazier was elected to the school committee in Ward 1 over C. Frederick MacGill and Charles R. Cabot defeated present school committeeman Harry E. Bryant in Ward 2. Ralph F. Taber defeated Bernard D. Farrell in Ward 3.

Harold W. Knowlton and Mrs. Margaret H. Woods were unopposed in Wards 4 and 5.

Committeeman Clark B. Bristol defeated William C. Ray in Ward 6 and Joseph F. Hugan was unopposed in Ward 7.

In the ward aldermen contests Rodney C. Eaton defeated John J. Maguire in Ward 2, Eugene A. Cronin defeated Alderman Kenneth C. Tiffin in Ward 3 and in Ward 5 Alderman Clifford H. Walker defeated Harry B. Cummings.

In Wards 1, 4, 6 and 7, Edward A. Fahey, George A. Bacon, Carrol J. Hoffman and Theodore R. Lockwood were unopposed.

Waltham

Mayor Arthur A. Hansen, with 14,069 votes, was an easy winner over John J. Foster, former city solicitor. His margin of victory was by 4600 votes.

Results of other contests follow:

For councilor-at-large (four to be elected—two-year terms):

Ball Bartlett, 6315 (elected); Jeannette C. Chisholm, 5871; John C Collins, 6731 (re-elected); Thomas J. Flannery, 6165 (elected); Anna W. Fogg, 4941; Henry W. Leonard, 5987; Joseph M. Mahar, 5859; William H. Rhodes, 7236 (elected).

For ward councilor (two-year terms): Ward 1—Councilor Thomas J. Gilligan, 994; George M. MacDonald, 1763 (elected). Ward 2—William E. Hayes, 1264 (elected). Leo T. McGann, 1200. Ward 3—Thomas M. Flaherty, 962 (elected); Councilor Stephen J. Halloran, 797. Ward 4—John F. Devane, 1123 (re-elected); William F. Gibbs, Jr., 871. Ward 5—Louis B. Connors, 928 (re-elected); Louis J. Kirsch, Jr., 330. Ward 6—Councilor Robert W. Elder, 1096; Linwood I. Locke, 1211 (elected). Ward 7—Paul I. Harold, 457; Councilor Joseph D. McCarthy, 457 (re-elected).

For school committee—three to be elected—(four-year terms): Benjamin N. Bliss, 6146; Arthur G. Burke, 6349 (elected); Warren E. Clancy, 5876; Mabelle S. Gray, 5870; Muriel H. Jones, 6421 (elected); Edward J. Shaughnessy, 6799 (elected).

Everett

Mayor Frank E. Lewis of Everett joined the ranks of "veteran" mayors today on his third election victory. He defeated Rep. Alfred E. Morris, 9974 to 8237.

The battle was close in almost every one of the city's six wards, with Morris, minority Democratic leader in the House, showing strength all the way down the line.

Morris carried two wards and lost by a slight margin in two others.

Worcester

William A. Bennett Republican mayor, was re-elected over his long time opponent, John S. Sullivan Democrat, by 5758 votes.

The margin of victory was decisive in comparison to the 25 votes by which Mayor Bennett won two years ago. At that time, a recount fight was waged for weeks in the courts.

Totals were: Bennett, 37,648; Sullivan, 31,890.

Elected alderman-at-large was John H. Toomey, Jr., Republican, with 34,674 votes against 31,508 for Raymond P. Dubois, Democrat. Valmore X. Gaucher Republican, was re-elected school committeeman-at-large, defeating John F. McGrath, Democrat, by 32,079 to 34,772.

Winners in ward contests for school committee: Ward 1, Harold W. Eaton (R.); 2, Flora A. Lane (R.); 3, James J. Marshall (D.); 4, Joseph F. Leahy (D.); 5, Francis D. Costello (D.); 6, David Friedman (R.); 8, Jeremiah T. Shea (D.).

Ward aldermen elected: 1, Albert E. Hall (R.); 2, Roy G. Petterson (R.); 3, John F. Mungovan (D.); 4, Stephen F. Loughlin (D.); 5, James D. O'Brien (D.); 6, Alton V. Spongberg (R.); 8, William B. Lynch (D.).

POLL REVEALS NORTON NEW BOSTON POWER

Observers Amazed At Margin of 20,000

By FRANK REILLY

Political observers declared today that Clement A. Norton of Hyde Park will be a power to be reckoned with in Boston politics.

Amazed by the Norton victory that swept him into a Boston school committee seat on a tidal wave of 84,601 votes, 20,000 more than his nearest opponent, practical politicians who long have feared the Hyde Park leader were compelled today to admit that a new faction has come into power here.

Norton carried 16 of the 22 wards of Boston in the first city-wide campaign of his career.

Veteran campaigner Joseph C. White of West Roxbury, who was re-elected to the committee, carried only two wards, one of them the district in which he resides, and Daniel J. McDevitt of Jamaica Plain, who received only little more than half of Norton's tally to win third place, carried only his home district.

TOBIN MEASURE WINS

Next in public interest was action of Boston voters in passing the referendum which permits Mayor Tobin to be a candidate to succeed himself in office and upsets in City Council contests.

In the school committee fight, White's vote was 64,802 and McDevitt's total, which was approximately the same as he received in defeat two years ago, was 47,931.

Although victorious yesterday's campaign was believed to have marked the beginning of the end of White's political career because he received 22,000 less votes than he did two years ago.

In defeat John J. Sullivan of Charlestown and Albert Wiest of East Boston exceeded the showing of McDevitt because they carried their home wards.

CHAMPION OF JUSTICE

Norton during his 10 years of service at City Hall has consistently campaigned against what he believed to be injustices.

Members of his campaign committee, with few exceptions, were men and women engaged in their first political contest.

The bulk of the votes given him yesterday were from citizens of modest means whose champion he has always been.

His first act after learning of his election was to publily announce that under no circumstances will he oppose Mayor Maurice Tobin should the latter, as the result of passage of the referendum affording him such opportunity, decide to seek a second term.

Political critics had charged during the campaign that the Hyde Park leader was seeking a seat in the school committee because he feared to ask for re-election in his home ward. Residents of Ward 18 made vigorous denial of this when they piled up 7283 votes for him a majority of more than 2500 votes over his nearest opponent.

Defeat by McDevitt of Dr. Patrick J Foley was attributed to the fact that the South Boston dentist had done little active campaigning until publication of newspaper articles revealing the strength of the Jamaica Plain man.

Dr. Foley received 42,908 votes, losing by 5023 ballots. Had he started active campaigning a week earlier he would have been the said victor in the contest, it was believed today by political observers.

SCHOOL GROUP LOSES

Mrs. Hattie M. Smith of West Roxbury candidate of the recently reorganized Public School Association received only 26,689 votes. The association had also endorsed candidates Norton and White although their elections had already been conceded by every political observer in Boston.

It is believed that the defeat of Mrs Smith spells the doom of the association and that it will now pass from the political scene. Observers point out that the average citizen is now political minded and prefers to choose his own candidate for office.

White carried Wards 19 and 20, Jamaica Plain and West Roxbury, which he once represented in the State Senate, and trailed Norton throughout the rest of Boston. McDevit carried Ward 10, Roxbury-Jamaica Plain.

Norton swept North, South and West Ends and Back Bay, upset Dr. Foley in Ward 7, South Boston, his home section, took Wards 8 and 9, Roxbury by margins of nearly two to one, carried Ward 11, Jamaica Plain and Ward 12, Roxbury.

He carried all of the five Dorchester wards receiving approximately 21,000 votes in that section alone, and shattered his opponents in the Brighton-Allston sections when voters of Wards 21 and 22 gave him more than 7500 votes.

Four Council Losers Will Contest Vote

Kennedy was runner-up with 2188 votes.

Upset of Councilor McMahon in Ward 8 came as a surprise to many at City Hall where he is extremely popular.

Councilor Murray's defeat was not altogether a surprise to residents of Ward 6 who in recent weeks had flocked in increasing number to the political standard of Joseph M. Scannell, one of the most popular young men of the district.

DEFEAT A SURPRISE

City Hall folk has not expected the defeat of Councilor Rosenberg. No inkling had come to the Hall that Joseph J. Gottlieb was the formidable candidate he proved to be.

Unless recounts change the status of some now acknowledged to be victors in the various wards there will be 10 new faces in the council next year.

Mrs. Harris will be succeeded as only woman member of the body by Mrs. Donovan, who will have the distinction of being the second of her sex ever to hold membership there. Mrs. Donovan will succeed Councilor Francis W. Irwin, who is retiring from office. Councilor John E. Kerrigan of Ward 7, now a member of the State Senate, will be succeeded by Representative Thomas Linehan.

Councilor Robert G. Wilson of Ward 17, Dorchester, also retiring, will be followed in office by John C. Wickes.

James J. Goode will represent Ward 18, Hyde Park, as successor to School Committeeman-elect Clement A. Norton. Michael J. Ward will fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of James E. Agnew, now state commissioner of fisheries and game.

Woman to Run Westfield

horns and music, swept up the street.

"Naturally I'm proud to be the first woman mayor in Massachusetts' history, but prouder still that it's Westfield where I will hold office—a growing city, energetic people, progressive industries.

WILL BE BOOSTER

"I shall be a booster first and foremost. City government, especially civic affairs in Westfield, has been my hobby and my life."

Her voice was vibrant, alive, with no trace of weariness to be expected in a person of the "gentler sex" after a prolonged campaign and fierce election day battle.

"You know, I've always contended an intelligent woman is the equal of any intelligent man. Maybe this victory helps prove it, because in my long struggle since 1933 to reach this position I've had to eliminate some pretty smart opposition among the men folks," she said.

Mrs Burke, whose husband, William T. Burke, is a postoffice clerk, described herself as an average woman, interested primarily in affairs of the people.

The Burkes have no children, but she has long been associated with young people.

NORMAL SCHOOL GRADUATE

A native of Whitinsville, she was graduated from Northbridge High School and Fitchburg Normal School. Later she taught Americanization and civic classes in Westfield schools and was forced to relinquish her teaching duties when she became married.

"My tastes are simple—none of the frivolous and unnecessary things for me," she says.

"I cook, like any housewife, but don't go in for the pastry and tarts. What's my favorite food? You name it!

"I eat what I please when I want to and don't have time to bother with diets or 'foods for the figure.' I'm 46 years old, weigh 170 and feel well and happy."

Latest dress styles, the wasp waist, up-do hair fashion and similar topics of prime feminine interest are not matters of great concern to Westfield's mayor-elect.

"My interests are entirely along civic lines, even my reading is devoted to books on government and city management," she explained.

"For this reason, I admire persons like Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and enjoy reading her column," Mrs. Burke said. "Mrs. Roosevelt is alert, wide awake, able. She commands my utmost admiration and I wish I could be like her."

Mayor Cowing, whom Mrs. Burke will succeed in office next January, is a veteran of five consecutive two-year terms. Already he has demanded a recount of the vote.

939,876 on Federal Payroll in September

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP) — The Civil Service Commission reported today that government employment reached a new high in September.

Civil employes on the government payroll in that month, the commission said, totaled 939,876, an increase of 6490 or 0.7 per cent over the previous month. The payroll was $141,629,881.

HUB CONSCIENCE AT WORK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—The government's conscience fund was boosted by $20 today with receipt of $20 from a Boston clergyman who explained he had been asked to act as an agent in rectifying an injustice concerning army property.

THE "MIRACLE" VITAMIN
Now in Tablet Form
THE AMAZING VITAMIN B¹

(Thiamin Chloride)

CONCENTRATED VITAMIN B¹ in crystalline form is the realization of a 30-year dream by one of America's foremost nutritional scientists. B¹ is now regarded as a highly valuable dietary supplement and has been eloquently characterized by its discoverer in these approximate words—the lack of no other accessory substance leads to so early, so profound and so universal disaster as does the lack of B¹. Described previously as the "mysterious vitamin," "the forgotten vitamin," today vitamin B¹ is being used by doctors in the clinical treatment of sick people more than any other vitamin.

Scientific journals, Medical journals, magazines and newspapers, clinics, physicians, laboratories are hailing Concentrated Vitamin B¹ as one of the greatest discoveries in nutritional science. A 400-page book has been written about B¹ and its use in medicine.

B¹ occurs in natural foods, but the refining, preparation and processing of foods often leads to its destruction and the average over-refined diet of civilized man frequently needs to be supplemented with concentrated B¹.

B¹ DEFICIENCY often RESULTS in
- Impairment of appetite and digestion.
- Loss of weight and vigor.
- Lack of intestinal muscle tone and constipation.
- Heart disorders.
- Degeneration of the nervous system.
- Atrophy of muscles.

When Sluggish Kidneys Cause That
STUBBORN BACKACHE

Read How Misery May Be Relieved

"A stitch in time saves nine" so when a good, old, time-tried diuretic and kidney stimulant may be the means of bringing blessed relief when miserable and stubborn backache makes life a burden—why hesitate to try it.

All over the world Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules is known as one outstanding kidney diuretic that has been helping people with sluggish kidneys for scores of years.

So if you suspect that your kidneys are not as active as they should be, get a 35 cent box of Gold Medal today—it has helped thousands. Annoying backache is often a symptom that your kidneys need stimulation—so is getting up nights and frequent or scanty passage that oftimes smarts and burns.

At times nervousness, dizzy spells, leg cramps and swollen ankles may indicate that your kidneys need a diuretic.

It's a good thing also to know that most of the acids and poisons that get into the blood must be eliminated through the kidneys and bladder for if the kidneys are inactive or sluggish these acids may cause harm by remaining in the blood — sometimes these acids and circulating poisons aggravate the pains and aches of sciatica, neuritis, neuralgia, lumbago and rheumatism.

So remember to ask for Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules right from Haarlem in Holland—the Gold Medal—the pure—the genuine—the original—don't be an easy mark and accept a substitute—look for the Gold Medal on the box.

Vote Unknown On Bond Veto

Results were incomplete today in the balloting by the voters of 17 Massachusetts cities in a referendum to decide whether to extend to the electorate the power to veto bond issues for major capital issues, but those first reporting favored the proposal.

The referendum was placed on the ballot as the result of a bill proposed by the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers and passed the last Legislature.

"The working of the law is simple," said a statement by the taxpayers' group. "If a city council votes to issue bonds for capital outlay, the vote does not take effect for 20 days. If, within that time, a petition for a referendum on the bond issue is signed by at least 12 per cent of the registered voters (but by not over 12,000), the council must reconsider its action.

"It may reverse itself and vote down the bond issue."

NIGHT COUGHS

YOUR CHILD'S coughing at night—caused by throat "tickle" or irritation, mouth breathing, or a cold—can often be prevented by rubbing the throat and chest with plenty of Vicks VapoRub at bedtime.

VAPORUB'S SWIFT poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm, relieves irritation, clears air passages, tends to stop mouth breathing, and invites healing, restful sleep. Try it.

VICKS VAPORUB

With appetizers: a special mark of hospitality

People who entertain often are discovering this—before dinner more and more guests nowadays prefer a moderate beverage like wine. Rich, mellow-amber Sherry, for instance, is now a favorite choice with simple appetizers. It's easy to serve—and thrifty. Try it. For other wine serving ideas, see your retailer.

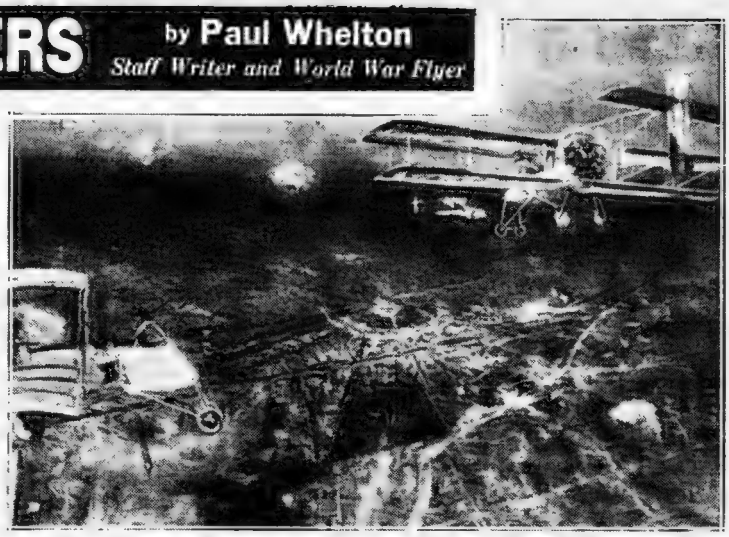
THE SKY RAIDERS

by Paul Whelton
Staff Writer and World War Flyer



AERIAL BOMBARDMENT — Flyers in war keep busy—if it's not combat, it's bombing . . . and Lieut. Henry Ferre paints a dramatic picture of such a bombardment over Karlsruhe for his book, "Sky Fighters of France." The picture is used by courtesy of Houghton Mifflin Co.

WHEN THE STOCKY man with the bristling mustache and wearing the French flying blue got on the train at the Gare de l'Est, the train controller appeared a bit flustered, but then he stepped up determinedly.

"What is that animal?" he demanded.

"It's an African dog," replied the aviator calmly.

The beast on the leash lunged forward suddenly, mouth open in a roar and claws protruding like needles.

With frightened shrieks several women hastily fled the train. The station master came arunning.

They were still shrieking imprecations from train and platform as the peanut whistle of the locomotive shrilled excitedly and the cars began to move away, leaving Lieut. William Thaw of Pittsburgh and his young lion friend disconsolate at the station, to where they had been vociferously ejected.

The lion cub, "Whiskey," just purchased from a Brazilian dentist for 500 francs, raised by a syndicate of the Lafayette Escadrille, rode later to Luxeuil in a crate, eventually to be joined by another cub, "Soda," and both to be mascots of the Americans flying for France.

The scene at the Gare de L'Est was the first real incident of his war career for "Whiskey," but it was just another incident for Lieut. Thaw, the American millionaire who was one of the seven original members of the Lafayette Escadrille.

Verily the history of the World War is the history of Bill Thaw, for there was no airman of any nation who had as broad and as active a participation as the chunky, good-natured flyer from Pittsburgh.

France's Rene Fonck came closest, but lacked one day of the Thaw tenure of war service, Aug. 21, 1914, to Nov. 11, 1918.

And through all that service, in the trenches as a member of the French Foreign Legion and in the air while flying for France and then for his native America, Bill Thaw led a charmed life, being wounded once.

On dawn patrol May 25, 1916, Thaw and Kiffin Rockwell sighted a flight of Fokkers and Thaw shot one of them down. Returning to the escadrille air field at Bar-le-Duc, he belittled the victory with his usual modesty.

"No credit to me," he said. "I just murdered him. He never saw me."

THE escadrille was under orders to take patrol in full force and Thaw and Rockwell had just time to fill their tanks and replenish their ammunition before the flight was away, led by the commander, Capt. Georges Thenault.

Over Les Eparges the flight formed and headed toward St Mihiel, over the long yellow and brown strip, shell-pitted and bereft of trees, of bushes, of grass —of any verdure whatsoever— the battlefield of Verdun.

Small, this strip appeared from the air, but it was miles long and fewer miles wide a steel tortured, blood-stained, gas-soured playground of Death that was not pretty even from the skies.

Northward the flight patrolled, and toward the east, in the distance, a flight of German two-seaters appeared out of the haze.

Capt. Thenault had ordered that no attack be made by anyone until he had given the signal by waggling his wings, and he gave no signal now because the Boche were too low and the Lafayetters were over enemy country.

But out of the formation one over-anxious pilot dived, and there was nothing else for the leader and the others to do but follow him in his rashness.

Surprised were the Boche, but not too surprised to wing over and start a trek homeward. Smoke of tracer bullets filled the air, and din of motors was terrific as the dog-fight raged on.

The Boche were giving a good account of themselves. With the pilots firing directly ahead and the observers using swivel guns, they had more armament and more direction than the single-seater Nieuports of the Lafayette fliers, but they had not equal speed and maneuverability.

It was every man for himself, and Bill Thaw of Pittsburgh found his hands full with the Boche he had selected as his quarry. Diving in, firing, zooming, rolling, reversing, roaring back, firing, sliding off redressing—using every trick to get in that one Sunday punch and to avoid being Sunday-punched by the foe.

Out of the ruckus Thaw could see one Boche plane dive and land, apparently badly shot up. Another followed, and another. The fight was drifting nearer the front now and although the whirling, tossing machines had gradually taken more altitude as they battled, ground troops were enabled occasionally to get in some clear shots at the allied planes as they spewed out of the ruckus.

As Thaw shrieked down in a "Russian mountain"—a power dive, turned into a half loop with motor off—he saw two of the escadrille machines limp away. Then he was hanging under the tail of his Boche—but too late. The German was sliding off as Thaw fell into a half spin.

With the force of a hard-swung baseball bat something lifted Thaw's left arm into the air. It fell back again and an excrutiating pain wracked him.

A bullet had struck the elbow and later the joint was found to be shattered so badly that surgeons for a time despaired of saving it.

His Boche was gone by the time Thaw recovered, but he knew he had been weakened and already he could feel the blood soaking through his clothing.

He glanced around and found he was well up over Etain. He pointed for the lines and headed in. Now his head was beginning to get light. Already he must have lost considerable blood. The machine wobbled as he sagged weakly, but he fought off the feeling and snatched back control of the Nieuport.

The ground was fast coming up at him from the west. He knew he was beyond his own lines now—at least he hoped he was. Things were beginning to look cloudy. The ground came up. He tried to level off. The plane struck, rebounded, struck again and rolled, snagging against barbed wire.

When next his vision cleared he was looking at blue uniforms. Saved! They were French. But Bill Thaw felt awfully sick.

The Poilus aided him from the Nieuport, which had come to rest close to the Fort of Tavannes, on top of the Cote de Meuse, and they took him to the hospital at Dieue.

Surgeons found the elbow was practically "pulverized," but they patched him up and sent him to the American hospital at Neuilly, on the outskirts of Paris. And from there, with his arm in a sling, Thaw reported back to the Lafayette Escadrille. He wasn't going to miss any more action than he could help.

Only member of the famed escadrille who served with it through the entire period of its existence, genial and calm Bill Thaw flew every type of plane used for combat in the French service.

James Norman Hall and Charles B. Nordhoff, both members of the Lafayette Flying Corps (Hall of the Lafayette Escadrille itself) said of Thaw in their voluminous history, "The Lafayette Flying Corps":

"He has potted at enemy machines with rifles, revolvers, rockets and machine guns, and lost count long ago of his combats and his total hours of flight au-dessus des lignes enemies.

"It is no exaggeration to say that he has had, at least once, every conceivable kind of aerial experience, including that of being wounded.

"His record of service is not to be estimated by his score of official victories. Creditable as this is, it is nothing like so great as those of some other allied airmen with fewer service stripes.

"William Thaw's first interest was always in the victories of his pilots, and he worked harder for their successes than for his own.

"As a squadron commander, he was without a peer. Even as 'Major Bill,' when he might have rested 'tranquille,' as the French say, he still led his pilots on patrol.

"Patrol, under his leadership, meant combat, and under the most favorable conditions for victory. He fought with his head as well as with his nerve. Few men knew better how to maneuver for position and the precise second when to attack."

WILLIAM THAW, II., son of Mrs. Benjamin Thaw of Pittsburgh, and cousin of the notorious Harry K. Thaw, came from a wealthy family whose fortune was founded in 1804 by John Thaw.

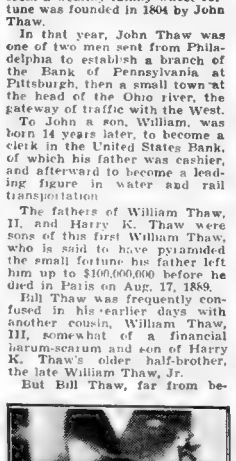
In that year, John Thaw was one of two men sent from Philadelphia to establish a branch of the Bank of Pennsylvania at Pittsburgh, then a small town at the head of the Ohio river, the gateway of traffic with the West.

To John a son, William, was born 14 years later, to become a clerk in the United States Bank, of which his father was cashier, and afterward to become a leading figure in water and rail transportation.

The fathers of William Thaw, II, and Harry K. Thaw were sons of this first William Thaw, who is said to have pyramided the small fortune his father left him up to $100,000,000 before he died in Paris on Aug. 17, 1889.

Bill Thaw was frequently confused in his earlier days with another cousin, William Thaw, III, somewhat of a financial harum-scarum and son of Harry K. Thaw's older half-brother, the late William Thaw, Jr.

But Bill Thaw, far from being a playboy, was a serious lad who early became interested in aviation and who quit Yale, where he was in the class of 1915, to grind over machines in a dingy shop in Bleecker st., New York.



CAPT. GEORGES THENAULT
Escadrille's Commander

He was the first aviator to fly under the four bridges of New York's East river, climaxing what was then chronicled, in 1913, as "the concluding stage of a brilliant flight from Newport, R. I., to New York."

"Hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers," said that report, "watched and cheered him as he passed under the four bridges, an unprecedented feat, which aviators had previously shunned because of the treacherous air currents so near the surface."

At that time Thaw's brother, Alexander, then only 15, had invented an automatic stabilizer to prevent airplanes from slipping or skidding while in flight.

That same summer Bill Thaw was the hero of the season at Newport when he took some of the most distinguished socialites and some of the most attractive belles into the air.

Later, at Palm Beach, Fla., he made a flying record of one mile in 40 seconds and did a thriving business in taking people up at $20 a flight "as high as they want to go."

He was using what then were termed hydro-aeroplanes, one of which had cost him $65,000, and already had announced a plan for an aerial "cab service" from incoming ships to shore.

TO PROVE that his plan was practical he dropped a bundle of newspapers on the liner Imperator as she was entering the New York ship channel, and the feat came in for widest publicity.

In the spring of 1914, Bill and Alexander, the "kid brother," went to Europe with a 100-horsepower Curtiss hydro-aeroplane on which Alexander's stablizing device had been installed.

They intended to compete for the $10,000 safety prize offered by the French government and to enter other competitions. At that time the World War was not in sight, but it soon came along to upset all their plans.

Bill Thaw presented the plane to the French government and applied for enlistment in the aviation corps. So sorry, were the French, but it was not permitted for one not a Frenchman to enlist in any branch save the Foreign Legion.

"So all right," said Thaw, "it's the Foreign Legion."

That was Aug. 7, 1914, and on Aug. 21 he was accepted and sent to Rouen, with 25 other American volunteers, for training. Six weeks there drilling, then to Toulouse and the Camp de Mailly, six days on the march to Craonne—and the Americans, on Oct. 16, saw their first service with the Legion in the trenches.

The young Pittsburgh millionaire, who would have been Yale '15 and whose fortune could provide him all the comforts and luxuries, was a five-cents-a-day soldat and none in the Foreign Legion then knew otherwise.

In the trenches, Thaw met James Bach, an American who had been living in Paris and who was to have the distinction of being the first American flyer taken prisoner in the war, and Bert Hall, roamer and soldier of fortune who long ago had decided that there were many more romantic places in the world than the town of his birthplace, which bore the unromantic name of Higginsville, Mo.

Thaw, Bach and Hall frequently discussed in the front lines the ways and means of transferring to aviation, and finally they were allowed to do so.

Although his pre-war service had been only with hydro-aeroplanes, the Pittsburgh volunteer soon proved that he could fly any type of plane the French had.

As he was about to complete his training and start for the front he learned from Norman Prince of Boston the plans for the formation of a squadron composed of Americans under the tricolor.

At first Thaw was lukewarm, believing that he would delay his actual fighting service by another shift, so he went into a French squadron operating from Nancy and afterward from Luneville.

On May 18, 1915, he was made a "sergeant" and was cited three times in the same month. From March 26, 1915, to Jan. 29, 1916, he served with Escadrille C 42, and from March 28 to April 15 in Escadrille N 65.

THEN, on April 21, he and the other six Americans of the original Lafayette Escadrille, were first together as an American unit at Luxeuil.

Not long afterward Thaw was cited for taking off from the aerodrome after a Boche playing up above and chasing the German all the way back to his own field, unable to catch him, however, because of the long start enjoyed by the foe.

But Thaw had a lovely time on the way back, encountering no enemy machines, but riding through the archie barrage which fired at him all along the line.

How many enemy planes credited to other flyers of his patrols were "softened up" first by Bill Thaw will never be known, but if ever there was any doubt as to who actually sent down the Boche, the Pittsburgh flyer invariably gave the credit to the other man.

Thaw never forgot the first principles of aviation in wartime to get information for your side via the air and to prevent the other lad from getting information for his side.

The heavy observation and photo planes were the eyes and ears of the ground army, and the fast scouts, such as Bill Thaw and his mates flew, were the police assigned to see that the eyes and ears could function.

Thaw's duty, as he saw it, was to prevent the Germans from interfering with allied observers and cameramen—and he per-

Keep U. S. Out of War—Be Neutral!

The National League of Mothers of America appeals to all New England women to join its campaign to keep America out of Europe's war and Europe's war out of America.

The Legion of Mothers asks every woman to sign the following card and to mail it to National Legion of Mothers of America, Box 228, Boston.

I PLEDGE

1—To oppose sending American soldiers to fight on foreign soil.

2—To support a program for adequate national defense.

3—To oppose any attempt to destroy the American form of government.

THE MENACE to neutral interests in the present European war, particularly to those nations of Northern Europe which preserved their neutrality and integrity in the World War, is already grave.

Evidence of this is in the current threats of subjugation of Finland by Russia, and in the imperious attitude of Germany toward Norway for recognizing and respecting the clear rights of the United States in the City of Flint incident.

It is to be hoped the Scandinavian countries, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland, have entered into serious alliance for mutual protection.

These honestly and admirably governed nations are confronted by dangers in this war far more serious and alarming than they faced in the World War.

They probably are not going to be permitted merely to assert their neutrality and keep it. They probably are going to have to possess something more than peaceful desires and intentions to save themselves. They are certainly going to have the need of armed means of defending themselves which will be respected.

Singly, each of these little nations is more or less helpless.

Their pooled resources, however, of manpower and materials might well give pause to the mightiest and greediest of European belligerents.

They should be prepared to offer the last ounce of resistance to unprovoked invasion and conquest, and to exact a price for attack upon them which might stay their potential despoilers.

IT IS POSSIBLE that the smaller nations in this menaced region, Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania, should also be included in such a protective alliance, as they will probably get no protection from any other source.

Under other circumstances, these latter nations might have received a measure of protection from Germany.

But the unfortunate conditions which have driven Germany and Russia into an alliance make this impossible.

Peace will only be preserved in Northern Europe where the means exist to make its violation impracticable and too costly.

Neutrality will only be preserved and honored and respected where armed barriers can turn back force and violence.

The peaceful Scandinavian countries are entitled to freedom from molestation, and it would be shameful and criminal to have them overrun by invading hosts and their territories seized and their resources commandeered.

No ordinary war would confront them with such a menace.

But this is not an ordinary war, in which honest neutrality and earnest desires for peace may be respected.

This is a war of conquest and seizure, in which force must be opposed by force.

THE ONLY HOPE of the Scandinavian countries, their rich resources already eyed jealously and covetously, is in an alliance for peace and defense.

Civilization is in a sorry state when the littleness and weakness and inoffensiveness of peaceful nations comprise an invitation to attack and conquest and slaughter.

European civilization, at least, is IN THAT STATE.

Let us hope the Scandinavian countries have recognized their peril, and have banded together to preserve their peace as long as possible and to defend themselves if that is necessary.

A BOUNTIFUL CHRISTMAS can be expected in at least 353,961 Massachusetts homes, according to Dana S. Sylvester, executive manager of the Savings Banks' Association.

A total of 353,961 depositors have saved $14,525,129 in Christmas Clubs—an increase of $1,400,769 over last year's amount.

Because a goodly part of this money will go into immediate circulation, retail merchants are certain to find their stores busier and their customers happier.

Throughout the late depression, thousands of persons neglected buying the furniture, clothing and many other necessities every American ought to have.

Now, with business improving in all the New England States, this combination of enforced economy and painful sacrifice is no longer obligatory or practical.

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

WE LIKE to stick to our knitting over in this corner. Ordinarily, we consider war and its imminence something for specialists in that line, but there never was a war—inhuman as they all are—that didn't bulge over into the Human Side of the News.

You may cinch this observation beyond all doubt or slight qualification by taking a look at the government's preparation for "M Day," or Mobilization Day, which will gear us into the war.

Your life won't be your own when that day comes and you may never get it back.

You built a second house on a secluded corner of your suburban property a year or two ago. It is rented and takes care of the carrying charges on your property. The government will take over that accounting and tell you what rent you can charge.

It will tell you how much you can pay old Dan the handyman who looks after the property, and it will also tell your boss how much he can pay you, and what percentage, if any, he can take from his business.

THE United States Chamber of Commerce is fully aware of all this and thoroughly alarmed. Big business is awake and getting its lawyers and economists on the job. The organized and articulate elements of the nation know the score and rally their forces.

The rest of us whose property stake is small, but whose human stake is large, have been complacent, and the story of "M Day" has slid through the news all too quietly.

A story of Soviet Russia translates it into our everyday life. A peasant planned a party in his little hut to celebrate his wedding anniversary. He managed to get together some vodka and the ingredients for a cake. Then he invited his friends. The next day he was visited by the local party leader, who asked him how many guests he would have.

"Twelve," said the peasant.

"That's a lot of people for one gathering," said the official. "We can't allow it unless we have a man there. I will send a gay-payoo man."

THE PEASANT pleaded that this was just a little friendly meeting of lifetime friends and would be spoiled by the presence of a policeman. The party leader asked him for the names of his guests. The peasant told him.

"O, that's all right," said the former. "We'll have a couple of men there anyway."

American M Day Plans Suggest Communist Regimentation

M day preparations are the devices of military technicians whose only legitimate concern is to win the war. And how a free nation may hope to shake off the tyranny is for someone else to worry about.

The M Day plan is the one clearly marked price tag on this war.

Let's take a long, hard look at the price tag. If we do I think we will decide that the price is too high. And in this day and age there is no such thing as a cut-rate war.

We couldn't get a reduction and we couldn't trade in our 1918 model for a single thin dime.

Translate the deal into all that makes life worth living for you and your family and I think you will agree that we can't afford a war.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 8—I visited a training school for boys between the ages of 12 and 18 yesterday afternoon. It is about 16 miles out of St. Louis and is run on the cottage system with much land around it. The boys work three hours of the day on academic school courses and four hours on actual labor jobs.

The WPA orchestra and the choral leader were putting on a concert in which the boys themselves participated. The commentator told the story of the music which the orchestra was about to play and the boys joined in the singing. Sometimes it was a quartette of boys trained under the WPA recreational project by the choral director, sometimes it was a song by the entire glee club.

The boys never had any time to weary of too much orchestral music, nor did they have to sit still too long, because periodically they rose and sang as loudly as they wanted.

It seemed to me a very well planned entertainment. When it was brought to an end by the singing of "God Bless America" I could not help thinking that these boys, handicapped at the start but with a future still to be, would become, after I returned to the fore them, were singing this song with more spirit than did the audience at the Kiwanis Club on Saturday.

AS WE WENT OUT, a sextette of rather elderly musicians was playing on the lawn. The musicians' union has sponsored the music project in St. Louis.

The NYA representatives came train and told me of some interesting projects in the State of Missouri. One of them, a project in the southern part of the State in the Ozark region, has taught the boys how to use stone for building purposes.

It appears that they have not been slow in applying this knowledge to their own needs and there is an "epidemic" of stone houses in that part of the State.

In the Ozark area, the local court judges have sponsored many of the NYA projects and they say that delinquency has been cut down 65 per cent as a result of this work.

SINCE I have been thinking so much about boys and young people these last few days, it seems an appropriate time to mention a book which has just appeared called "Parenthood In A Democracy," by Margaret Lightly and Leroy E. Bowman.

It is a memorial volume published in memory of Robert E. Simon's significant and lasting achievements in the cause of public education in New York City.

It will be of value to every parent because it tells the story of the United Parents Association's contribution to parent education.

HOPE DIAMOND IN ASH TRAY

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Ella Logan, ordering crepe suzette at the Stork, watches the waiter while he pours brandy into the pan, and then applies the match. "If I ever go out with a married man," Ella announces, "I'll never order crepe suzette, because the flame draws attention to us—and then we're found out." . . . "We just framed Lucius Beebe," a ringsider reports at the Royal Box. "We put Lindy's matches into his coat-pocket . . . "Helen Hayes, celebrating Charles MacArthur's birthday at the 18 Club, brings him to the floor and recites the Birthday Address to Her Lover, from the final scene of their new play, "Ladies and Gentlemen."

VERA ZORINA

"WE VISITED Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, and she came down to show us her Hope Diamond and the rest of her jewels," a film director relates at the Game Cock Cafe. "She retired, and as we were leaving, I noticed all her gems, including the Hope Diamond, lying in an ash tray. One of the Senators present refused to leave, until Evalyn's secretary was called, to check the jewels. 'I don't earn much money,' the Senator explained, 'and don't want to be suspected in case of loss' " . . . "I take my citizenship test tomorrow," George Balanchine states at La Conga. "Go ahead—ask me Constitutional questions" . . . "Yes, ask us," his wife, Vera Zorina, invites. "We studied—by seeing Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

"I MET the Archduke Franz Josef," a socialite reports at Longchamps, "and told him I didn't know how to address him—'Archduke,' 'Mister,' 'Your Grace' or what. He said I'd better call him what everybody in America seems to call him—plain 'Joe.'" . . . "I had one of my friends call Mrs. Max Schmeling, in Berlin, and ask where Max is," Joe Jacobs states at Lindy's. "She said Max is out hunting. My friend told her that's the first time he's heard of a guy hunting animals, during a war. My message to her was that if Max is fighting in the army, I, as his manager, want 10 per cent of that 30-a-month he gets."

"YES, I love to sing," confides Ronnie Gomon, attendant at the Gentlemen's Room at Fefe's Monte Carlo. "In fact, I've just auditioned at the Metropolitan Opera!" . . . "I'm sorry," Elinore Herrick, of the National Labor Board, tells Justice Ferdinand Pecora who was seated nearby at the Versailles, "but I've got to go back to the office and work." . . . "At this hour?" Pecora replies . . . "I'll bring charges against you—before the NLRB."

EXCLUSIVE: Zorina's surrender to Hollywood's rewards in cash and exploitation—twin hexes to the theater's casting problem—has started negotiations which, if successful, should make Broadway gasp . . . When Zorina walked out last week on Producer Dwight Deere Wiman she left the Yankee from Connecticut with a Rodgers and Hart set of words and music, a libretto by Gladys Hurlburt and a Boston booking (prior to New York) for a date in January . . . For months and months the Wiman office has set great store in a producing item known vaguely as the "Zorina show" . . . It had no title, no other actors and no compelling reason for existence other than to supplement Zorina's great success in "I Married an Angel," with a sequel by the same creators of the show that "made" Zorina . . . On paper the second show for Zorina was a natural—a million dollars dead ahead.

AT FIRST—when Mr. Wiman learned in Louella Parsons' column that Zorina was embracing the Sam Goldwyn kultur in preference to his, Dwight was inclined to chuck the whole business . . . Then he grew angry . . . And now—honest to goodness—the prospect is that Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will be the stars of the erstwhile "Zorina show" . . . Not a great deal of tinkering with the book is necessary . . . The big scene of the play to music places the female star as the Cinderella of the annual New York Dressers' Ball . . . We saw Mr. Lunt successfully become a song and dance man in "Idiot's Delight" . . . Even so—Miss Fontanne attempting a ballet dancer's elevations is a bit of a strain on the imagination . . . But a resourceful crew of writers like Hart, Hurlburt & Rodgers, with Mr. Wiman and Mr. Lunt and The Theater Guild contributing notions here and there, could throw the right switches to give the famous star a clear road in a part designed for another personality . . . When the news breaks it should be hailed by Broadway as a comparable sensation to George M. Cohan's merger with The Theater Guild in a play, "Ah, Wilderness," by Eugene O'Neill . . . Negotiations, at any rate, have progressed far enough to warrant this case history of developments to date . . . The deal is off.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: The column's only election prediction, a sweep for former Senator Michael J. Ward in his campaign for the City Council from Ward 21, came true with a vengeance . . . Mike carried every precinct but one and piled up the largest plurality of any candidate for the Council . . . The Ward victory, incidentally, may represent the only instance in the city's record of a man being elected to the Council from two different sections of the city . . . When he served before, the Brighton Democrat was a resident of Roxbury . . . "All in Fun," the probable hit song in "Very Warm for May," is the second musical show ditty of the season featuring "fun" . . . George White's "Scandals" was helped greatly by "Are You Having Any Fun" and Ella Logan's singing of it.

ONE OF THE LOCAL RADIO news commentators identified the missing Judge Crater as Judge "Carter" exactly five times in one news broadcast at the twilight hour . . . Could this be the solution of the mystery? . . . Judge Crater is hiding out in a radio studio—as a news commentator.

HEDY LaMARR IN 'SALOME' ROLE

By Louella O. Parsons

Hedy LaMarr

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 8. Hedy Lamarr, whose glamour has been more widely publicized than that of any other movie actress, opens in the Middle West in "Salome" Dec. 15. She will do a two-hour show with Ernest Deutch, famous Viennese actor with whom she formerly appeared. Otto Preminger is the director and "Salome" is to be staged by Luther Green, who is in charge of Nazimova's highly successful stage appearances. About Hedy's battle with Metro. The report that she turned down $2500 a week is definitely denied by Arthur Lyon, her manager. According to Mr. Lyon, M-G-M has made no offer to increase the $500 weekly she received which, you may remember, was the bone of contention since she felt that she should be better paid. The contracts have been drawn up by Barry Brennan and are waiting Hedy's signature.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Johnny Miles has put a ring on the engagement finger of pretty Dorothy Arden. He writes praise pieces for Goldwyn and she is in Harry Brand's department at 20th Century-Fox; Loretta Young in a very smart frock came to the Mitchell Leisen supper party with Tom Lewis, radio executive; Sonja Henie, who actually grows prettier, was heaued by Alan Curtis; although it was after midnight over 150 friends of Mitch and Sandra Gahle (Mrs. Leisen in private life) came on to the party enthusing over the way "Rigoletto" was presented; Irene Dunne, one of Hollywood's better singers, glimpsed with Dr. Griffin, Dorothy Lamour came with Wynn Rocamora while the erstwhile boy friend, Robert Preston, was with his mother; the Bob Hopes and Mary Livingstone without Jack Benny, who had to work, were among the guests; Astrid Allwyn indignantly denies she has picked out a successor to Robert Kent, whom she is divorcing.

LUISE RAINER, two-time Academy winner, has asked for her release from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and has been granted it. Luise feels that she was misunderstood by this company but I think that is open to discussion since it was while making pictures for Leo, the lion, that she nabbed two Oscars. At any rate, she is on her way back to Hollywood and will probably make a picture for another studio. Perhaps Luise was unhappy because much of the time she was working at Metro she was battling with her husband, Clifford Odets. The best work little Rainer did was in "Good Earth," and, of course, Anna Held in "The Great Ziegfeld."

DAILY STORY Sacrifice Marriage

I WAS 18, thrilling with life, when Jack and I fell in love. We knew we were made for each other the moment we met and could hardly wait for the time when we could be married.

I adored his youth and strength, his will to succeed. Working days and studying nights, he had won admission to the bar.

Then my widowed mother was stricken with pneumonia and had to give up her work as saleswoman. The doctor said her life depended on a year's rest in a southern clime.

What was a $16-a-week stenographer to do? "Heaven help me," I prayed, hoping for a miracle.

AS IF in answer, my middle-aged employer, Bill Smith, proposed, promising to do everything for my mother. It was like tearing my heart out to tell Jack there was no other way. We clung to each other, and then he said he was leaving town, for he never dared to see me again.

I was a sacrificial bride. The difference between passion and respect is farther than the East from the West. I could be only grateful for Bill's gallantry and his never-failing kindness.

Before the year was over Bill was found unconscious in his office. "Cerebral hemorrhage," the doctor pronounced. "Better if he never recovers—may mean softening of the brain."

A few weeks in bed, and he was up again with the physical helplessness and mind of a child. For two years I dragged his living, restless corpse around on scuffing, shuffling feet and listened to his ceaseless crying.

I had saved my mother's life, but I had killed my own!

THE END came at last. My husband left me a rich woman. Free at last, but where was Jack?

Months later I located him in a distant city and was delighted to find that he was still single.

The past seemed like a nightmare when I found myself in his arms again. We were married in less than three months.

Now that I am Jack's wife I know that I wouldn't give him up even to save my mother.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

DARE TO BE YOURSELF! Dare to think your own thoughts and make your own decisions, And follow Your own pattern.

Do not go through life Apologizing for yourself— Explaining yourself— Trying to fit yourself Into some more Glamorous pattern— Dare to accept yourself As you are— And express yourself According to Your own nature.

You long for power— You seek for power— By quoting others— By copying their gestures And echoing Their ideas— But there is no power In imitation— Your only power lies In being yourself— Your honest self— Your original self.

The rarest person ...On...earth—

The most impressive Person on earth— Is the person Who dares to be HIMSELF— Who dares to follow His own pattern And make His own decisions, However plain Or humble.

The great people Have never been Copies of people, Synthetic people; The greatest people Have been Original patterns, However simple or plain. People who dared To be themselves And say and think Their own true thoughts, However limited.

ONE OUNCE OF YOUR OWN TRUTH IS WORTH A TON OF THE OTHER FELLOW'S LEAVINGS.

Throw away your masks—

Forget your borrowings—
Junk your prejudices—
Strip yourself
Of your pretences
And your poses
And dare to be
You—yourself—
For in yourself
Lies enough mystery,
Enough power,
Enough beauty and truth
To blaze your trail
Across the world!

DARE TO BE YOURSELF!
Dare to use

The special, particular person—
God meant you to be
And follow the pattern
Which can give
Peace and happiness,
Strength and purpose
To you, alone!

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOON, Nov. 8—Come storm, come stress, Wally Beery goes blithely on his way at the M-G-M studios. He now is in his 13th year and has just signed a contract. Theye have been times, of course, when Wally had disputes but they've only been temporary. His first picture on the New Deal, which I might add gives him a very nice salary, is "Arise and Beware." The last Beery movie, "Thunder Afloat" is doing unexpectedly good business and that's not alone due to Wally's performance but because Ralph Wheelright authored a really timely story.

Hollywood Notes—Doris Davenport (formerly Doris Jordan) nearly ended her movie career which started so auspiciously with Gary Cooper in "The Westerner" ("Vinagarroon") when she tripped and fell down a full flight of stairs at the Goldwyn studios. She is a mass of black and blue spots and is unable to use the fingers of her right hand. At first it was feared that Doris also had seriously injured her right leg but x-rays revealed there were no bones broken. She is scheduled to leave Saturday for location in Arizona and since this picture is her big chance she insists she is going if she has to be carried on a stretcher.

'DuBarry' Play Opens Monday

Seats for "DuBarry Was a Lady," the B. G. DeSylva musical comedy due at the Shubert next Monday evening, are now on sale at the box office. It is here for a two-week engagement.

Bert Lahr, whose Cowardly Lion stole "The Wizard of Oz" acting honors, and Ethel Merman, musical comedy's singingest siren, are "DuBarry's" co stars.

Others in the cast are Phil Regan, Benny Baker and Betty Grable, on furlough from Hollywood; Mabel Todd, Kay Sutton, Tony Romano, Geraldine Spreckels, Betty Allen and Ann Graham.

The score is by Cole Porter, and the book by Herbert Fields and B. G. DeSylva and is directed by Edgar MacGregor. Robert Alton has staged the dances, and Raoul Du Bois has designed the scenery and costumes.

Runs Special Cars to 'The Hot Mikado'

Due to the demand for seats for Michael Todd's "Hot Mikado," the Al Robinson musical, the Boston Elevated is operting special cars direct to the Opera House every evening from 7:30 to 9 o'clock.

'VERY WARM FOR MAY' IS VERY PLEASANT COMEDY

Kern-Hammerstein Musical Holds Forth at Colonial

By PEGGY DOYLE

A heart-warming Jerome Kern score, Eve Arden, three striking Minnelli sets, Jack Whiting, some first-rate dancing, a cute ingenue named Grace McDonald and a gangster-softie drubbed Ray Mayer are the better things about "Very Warm for May."

The new Kern-Oscar Hammerstein, 2d, musical now tenanting the comfortable Colonial is a pleasant, charming show—if you don't let the thin if complicated plot distract you.

It is the story of a doting father who welched on a bet, three Marx gamblers determined to make him pay up, a birdbrained wealthy widow who is sponsoring a summer theater, a screwball playwright who is operating it, and a daughter who uses the "strawhat" for a hideaway from the mobsters and by her quick wit saves her father from them.

In this play within a play Eve Arden's silly, pretty summer theater patroness is an unmitigated joy. Every quiver of her articulate and handsome chassis and every syllable that emerges from her provocative mouth have point and purpose.

She plays Frances Mercer's mother, which hardly adds up correctly, but even if she played Whistler's mother, and at Mrs. W.'s ripe age she'd probably still be T. N. T. If we haven't made ourselves clear, she's swell, we mean.

And so is Jack Whiting, as the practical stage producer Miss Mercer discovers she loves after giving her bankroll but not yet her heart to the surrealist Hiram Sherman.

Young Doug Fairbanks' stepfather continues to look the part of one of the smoothest of the juveniles and to dance superbly when they give him a chance. But he hasn't too much opportunity and, as a matter of fact, he isn't too well cast.

Sid Mercer's lovely daughter, Frances, sings nicely but could profit by Whiting's on-stage advice.

Grace MacDonald, 20, is as cute as a button, to coin a phrase. Ray Mayer (remember him as half of vaudeville's popular team of Mayer and Evans?) is a standout in a minor role and rates having his part build up in proportion to his undisputed talents.

Likeable Donald Brian, as the welching daddy, hasn't a too attractive role but he does all that can be done with it. Anyway, it was nice to see him again.

The songs? They are many and memorable. "In Other Words, Seventeen," "That Lucky Fellow," "All in Fun," lead, and, too, there are "High Up in Harlem" and "Heaven in My Arms."

The Harold Losee-arranged dances, which included a stunning ballet number; Matty Malneck and his orchestra, which included a gifted accordion-player with the surname of DeLugg, are other assets. DeLugg's front-name is O-Cedar, because of his hirsuite mop, he explained.

The imaginative Minnelli's sets and costumes, particularly in the garden scene, are notable and Max Gordon's production is lavish as usual.

Durant Heads Show at RKO

RKO Boston tomorrow resumes its Thursday openings with Jack Durant, formerly of vaudeville's popular team of Mitchell and Durant, heading the stage show.

The picture is the film version of the successful Odets play, "Golden Boy," co-starring Barbara Stanwyck, Adolphe Menjou and William Holden.

Twentieth Century-Fox's expose of "The First World War," edited by Laurence Stallings, is the second screen attraction.

Following many years of stardom with his former partner, Frank Mitchell, on the stage in Earl Carroll's Vanities, George White's Scandals and as international vaudeville headliners, and on the screen in "Stand Up and Cheer," "She Learned About Sailors" and others, Jack Durant embarked "on his own" little more than a year ago. He has continued to carry on in the same comedy vein in which he and Mitchell excelled and only recently returned from a triumphant tour of England.

Maurice and Maryea, international dance stars, assisted by the Three Dots and Buddy Allen, will fill second important position in the revue. Maurice and Maryea possess an enviable reputation as one of the nation's top ballroom dancing combinations

ANDREA LEEDS and David Niven in "The Real Glory," opening tomorrow at Loew's State and Orpheum.

'The Rains Came' On Uptown Screen

Starting tomorrow on the Uptown screen are "The Rains Came," Darryl F. Zanuck's production of the Louis Bromfield novel, and "Fifth Avenue Girl," with Ginger Rogers, James Ellison and Walter Connolly.

Myrna Loy, Tyrone Power and George Brent share starring honors in the Zanuck picture

FILMS AT BOWDOIN

Bowdoin Square Theater, starting tomorrow, is showing "Beau Geste," with Gary Cooper, Ray Milland, Robert Preston and Brian Donlevy, and "House of Fear," with William Gargan and Irene Hervey.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT and Henry Fonda in "Drums Along the Mohawk," opening Thursday at the Met.

'Rulers of the Sea' to Have Hub Preview at Paramount

A Hollywood sneak preview is in the cards for Paramount patrons Friday night when a special Armistice Eve midnight show will feature Producer-Director Frank Lloyd's screen epic, "Rulers of the Sea."

One of Paramount's most important seasonal releases, "Rulers of the Sea" is being mentioned as an even greater Lloyd triumph than were his "If I Were King," "Mutiny on the Bounty," and "Wells Fargo."

This latest lusty, romantic screen story megaphoned by Lloyd is the story of the heroic struggle to conquer the Atlantic by a ship powered with steam and is peopled with red-blooded salty men and women who brought this dream to glorious realization.

The picture will be shown to the public for the first time in any New England theater when it is presented for one performance only at the Paramount's Armistice Eve midnight show Friday. All seats for this event will be reserved, they are now on sale.

'Drunk Driving' For Loew's Screens

Metro's short subject, "Drunk Driving," winner of the National Safety Council award as the best safety film of the year at Atlantic City's recent Safety Congress, will soon be shown on Loew's State and Orpheum screens.

The Safety Council represents one of the largest and most important agencies in the country. More than 1500 of its representatives witnessed the awarding of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer plaque.

De Cou Lectures To Start Nov. 10

Branson De Cou, travel lecturer, introduces his new series of dream pictures, "Treasure Island and California 1939" at Tremont Temple Friday evening, Nov. 10. He will repeat this lecture the following afternoon at 2:15 p. m.

Mr. De Cou will give his series of three lectures on three successive Friday evenings and Saturday matinees with one extra Saturday matinee on Dec. 9. Succeeding lectures, to be accompanied by natural color motion pictures, will be "Cruising to Chile," "The Pageant of Peru" and "Our Western Wonderland."

Course tickets are now on sale at Tremont Temple. Single tickets may also be purchased now.

BILL THAW'S WORLD WAR RECORD

formed that duty with a vengeance.

Unlike some of the wilder, more hot-blooded youths in the air - America's Wild Bill Wellman of Cambridge, Tommy Hitchcock of New York, Frank Luke of Arizona; Britain's Bell and Bishop; France's Jean Navarre and Charles Nungesser—unlike these and others who flew far into German territory, seeking airdromes and looking for trouble, Bill Thaw, as the dean of American flyers, stayed on his prescribed beat for the most part.

If he could ruin a $6000 single-seater scout machine for Germany, or a $5000 two-seater, even though the pilot might succeed in gaining his own lines, Thaw was satisfied, despite the fact that it was not scored for him officially.

Never did he land beside a plane he had knocked down behind his own lines, rip off the machine gun or cut out the identification numbers and carry them back as proof of another victory.

The dean had dignity and deadly purpose, and where other and more impetus knights of the air flashed meteorically and then were gone, Thaw continued on his steady, plodding way, training the others just coming up, mothering them over the lines, aiding them with a final burst of shot when they were in a tight corner—and clucking them back to the field.

Never was he known to become rattled, excited or nerve-wrought. To the other pilots, James Norman Hall of the escadrille bears testimony, Thaw was a tonic.

"To see Thaw's big 'T' or Lufbery's swastika on the wings of a neighboring plane was always a heartening sight when there were enemy machines in the vicinity.

"And how those young airmen kept the insignia in view until they had mastered their combat tactics!"

When Thaw, as a French lieutenant, entered the United States service in January, 1918, he was commissioned a major, and on Nov. 12, 1918, the day after the Armistice, was promoted to lieutenant-colonel.

And eventually he wrapped up his medals and many citations and his memories, and returned to civil life, still modest and unassuming, bearing a wound stripe, three times having been reported killed, only to bob up and report that he had wangled his crippled ship down safely.

After the war he continued to fly—and where he had ridden serenely through all of Death's darts during the war, his peacetime flying was a contributing factor to his end in 1934.

Trying out a plane Sept. 1, 1928, to participate in the national transcontinental air race from New York to Los Angeles, Thaw and his flying partner, Capt. John P. Morris, exhibited their skill when the machine caught fire 5000 feet above Pomona, Calif., and they landed the burning ship.

Two weeks later their air racer crashed near Geneva, Ind., and the two men, severely injured, lay out in a cold rain for hours before being found.

That exposure weakened the lungs of the war flyer, and when he suffered an attack of pneumonia in April, 1934, it proved fatal.

On April 22, in Pittsburgh, the dean of those immortals who fought as Americans under the tricolor of France shipped quietly away to meet again with Lufbery, Prince, Chapman, Phelps Collins, Genet, Hoskier, McConnell, Pavelka and the rest of that valiant band who flew their war birds to Valhalla.

Another episode in the Sky Raiders series will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

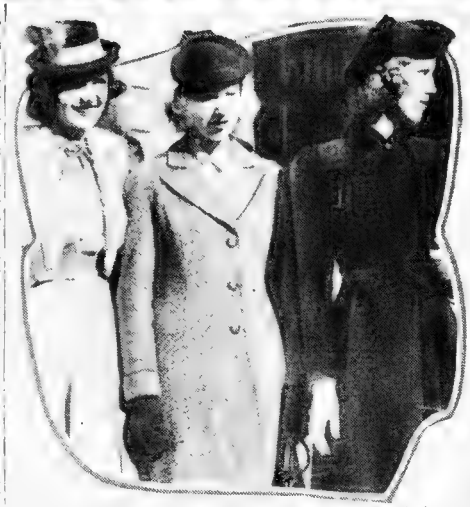
HERE'S A NOTE for baby Mary Louise Codman's baby book . . .

Several hundred women, including many of our most aristocratic dowagers, proposed a toast (in tea) yesterday afternoon, to the three-day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Codman who was born at Phillips House and named for her mother, the former Mary Louise Spaulding . . .

Best wishes for the infant and her mother were extended to the proud Grandma, Mrs. Bartlett Harwood, at the annual meeting of the Women's Civic Federation of Massachusetts at the Vendome . . . Mrs. Harwood is chairman of the public health committee of the federation and her daughter is the efficient co-chairman, with Patricia Gavin, of the lecture committee . . .

As a result of election of officers Mrs. Moses Williams continues her job as chairman of the federation which accomplishes such wonderful work in providing gallons and gallons of milk to public school children throughout the city, books for prison inmates and hospital patients, gifts of comfy chairs and radios for infirmaries and even woolens and hand knitted articles for war relief . . .



NATALIE MARSTON (center) who makes her debut Friday at a large luncheon at her mother's home in Newton Centre, arrives at a deb party with two of her vivacious sister debs, Priscilla Alden Crocker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Crocker, Jr., and Genevra Hobbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marland Hobbs. Miss Marston is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Marston.

Among the many attending the meeting and the tea which followed were Mrs. Robert Herrick whose black dress was brightened by touches of tangerine, Mrs. Phineas W. Sprague in black with gold costume jewelry, Mrs. William Adams Copeland whose wine velvet dress accented her lovely white hair, Mrs. Arthur E. Grannis, Miss Louise Coburn, Mrs. John G. Palfrey, Mrs. Robert W. Lovett, Mrs. Leland Powers, Mrs. Herbert L. Tinkham, and many others . . .

Jordan Hall Concert

THE CONCERT which Cleora Wool, talented soprano, and George Copeland, pianist, will give at Jordan Hall next Wednesday evening, will be heard by such musical connoisseurs as Mrs. Daniel de Menocal, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Forbes, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Taft, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer and Mrs. Chester B. Humphries . . .

Miss Wood, who in private life is Mrs. Orson Adams, Jr., wife of a Boston banker, is a former Kentucky belle . . . She studied singing on the West Coast and later in Paris, where Madame Melba gave her great encouragement in her career . . .

Natalie Hays Hammond, the artist, who lives in the beautiful Hammond castle in Gloucester, will also attend the concert together with Mr. and Mrs. Bentley W. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Metcalf, Mrs. Frederic J. Bradlee, Mrs. Gorham Brooks, Mrs. George Hawley and many others of social prominence . . .

Homes Full of Guests

HOMES FULL OF GUESTS will be the rule over the coming week-end, with so many out of town celebrities coming for the Harvard-Army game . . . Among the earliest arrivals were Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Fitzgerald (Marietta Peabody) who arrived from New York bag and baggage, Monday, in the midst of the Red Cross fashion luncheon at the Sheraton . . .

The lobby was full of Milton post debs who were modelling in the fashion show so Marietta had an impromptu and very warm reception while her bridegroom made his way through the crowd to register for their suit . . . Marietta wore a lovely beaver coat and tiny fur hat, a wintry contrast to the beautiful bridal outfit in which she is pictured in the current issue of Town and Country Magazine . . . She was married at Northeast Harbor in September and photographed with her were her bridegroom, her clergyman father, and her grandfather, the distinguished Rev. Endicott Peabody who helped officiate at the wedding . . .

Will Lecture On Philippines

The Guild of the Eucharistic Heart will meet next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock at 60 Vernon st., Roxbury, with Mrs. Thomas Donovan, presiding.

Rev. Daniel Sullivan, S. J., of the Immaculate Conception Church, will give an illustrated lecture on the Phillipine Islands, where he labored for many years.

A musical program will be presented by Miss Gertrude Fallon, contralto, accompanied by Miss Mary Haverty.

HEADS FORESTERS FOR SECOND TIME

Miss Margaret M. Begley, of Roslindale, will be installed chief ranger of Father O'Connor Court, Masachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, for the second consecutive time, on Thursday evening at the Hotel Touraine.

Members of the high standing committee of the order will be special guests at the exercises.

Dr. Eddy's Question Box

VITAMIN D MILK—WHY DIFFERENT? | CAN BUTTERMILK REPLACE SWEET?

—By DR. WALTER H. EDDY—
Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

Questions concerning foods, sanitation and health will be answered only if a stamped, addressed envelope accompanies your request. No exceptions can be made to this rule. Prescriptional advice cannot be given, nor can food or drug samples be analyzed. Address Dr. Walter H. Eddy, 57th st., at Eighth ave., New York city.

Vitamin D Milk

"In your article in the May number of Good Housekeeping you quoted Drs. Henry Hess and J. F. Lewis as showing vitamin D milk, obtained through feeding irradiated yeast to cows, to be less potent than milk whose vitamin D is obtained by irradiation. Is there any explanation for this difference?" G. I.

The standard method for determining the potency of vitamin D milk is to measure the quantity necessary to produce the healing of rickets under controlled test rats. That amount is called a rat unit. Drs. Hess and Lewis reported that a quantity of irradiated milk which assayed 32 to 45 rat units was sufficient to prevent rickets in children; but to secure the same effect when milk from yeast-fed cows was used, they found a quantity containing from 90 to 100 units necessary. These observations are the bases for the requirement—as laid down by the Wisconsin Alumni Foundation, which licenses both of these products — that a quart of yeast milk contain 162 rat units, as against 50 rat units in a quart of irradiated milk.

At the time of writing the May article I did not have available any check tests on the Hess-Lewis paper. Since then additional work has been done, and the paper by Dr. B. Kramer has appeared in the New England Journal of Medicine, which tends to contradict the Hess-Lewis findings, and would indicate that the yeast milk is as potent as irradiated milk, unit for unit. There has also been some recently reported work indicating that milk endowed with vitamin D properties through the addition of the product called Vitex is equivalent to irradiated milk, unit for unit.

If these observations are confirmed, it will mean that no matter how the vitamin D is put into milk, it will be usable on a rat-unit-equivalent basis.

Meanwhile, however, the vitamin D potency of the yeast milk being put out now is equivalent to that of irradiated or Vitex milk, since the yeast milk is prepared with a higher number of rat units per quart; thus its corrective value is assured.

One of the difficulties in reporting on current discoveries is that the findings of one day may be modified while the article is in press. The bureau aims to present accurate and up-to-date information, hence the giving of this new data of vitamin D milk.

Buttermilk Versus Sweet Milk

"Can buttermilk be safely used in the place of sweet milk in the diet?" R. G.

The term buttermilk is, perhaps, unfortunate, as it means a milk from which butter has been removed. One of the reasons for drinking milk is for the vitamin A present in the butter fat; consequently, skimmed milk, or so-called buttermilk, would have distinctly less of this factor than whole milk. Since butter is practically all that is removed from whole milk in the manufacture of buttermilk, the other nutrients would still be present. Buttermilk, however, has an added property not present in sweet whole milk; the presence of certain lactic-acid bacteria which may be beneficial in preventing certain types of constipation. Therefore, while whole milk and buttermilk are not equivalent, both are valuable foods.

Cooking

Try Turkey For Variety

By MARTHA LEE

You may be as one-track as you please in your clothes, or your home-decoration, but don't be one-track in your menu-planning.

Some people think they must alternate steak and chops. Others serve an occasional roast—at least on Sunday. It's altogether too easy to slip into habits, and think of meat in terms of seasons of the year.

Be really adventurous with your menus once in a while, and give the family a thrill by serving them roast turkey when they least expect it. Local turkey growers can get them to you—tender birds of delicious flavor — Massachusetts blue tag turkeys.

If your difficulty has been in using the last half of the turkey in an appetizing manner, some suggestions for return engagements may help.

TURKEY LEFT-OVERS

One simple good way is to pack a thin layer of boiled rice around the bottom and sides of custard cups. Fill with minced cooked turkey and turkey gravy. Cover with rice, dot with butter and heat thoroughly. Serve in the custard cups if you like, but it is more attractive turned out. Serve with hot crisp rolls and salad.

Or cut left-over turkey in small pieces, add bits of stuffing and moisten with cream of mushroom soup. Put in greased individual ramekins. Make a hollow in each, drop in an egg, dot with butter, and bake in a moderate oven until egg is set.

TURKEY HASH

Some one is always making disparaging remarks about turkey hash. It really is one of the best dishes in the world, but of course the secret is all in the making. Seasonings may be of different kinds—perhaps a chopped green pepper, some sauted mushrooms, a little curry, Worcestershire sauce, mustard, ketchup, salt and pepper of course.

Add an equal amount of potatoes, and blend with a little turkey gravy. Spread in a well-greased frying pan to brown, and fold like an omelet. Serve with crisp celery, ripe olives, baked bananas, or cranberry jelly.

And speaking of cranberry jelly—do you remember how long it used to take to make one batch of jellied cranberry sauce? Think of how easy it is today for the homemaker to serve delicious cranberry jelly, all prepared, all ready to use just by the turn of the wrist with the faithful little can-opener. Made right here in New England, every can has the same rich color, the same mild-tart flavor, the same firm texture.

CREAMED TURKEY

2 cups turkey, cut in small pieces
2 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. flour
½ tsp. salt
1 cup milk
⅛ tsp pepper

Make a white sauce with butter, flour, milk and seasonings. Add turkey and heat thoroughly before serving.

Smart Set Fashions

Muffled in Furs

LIKE TO LOOK infinitely luxurious in your furs, even your most budgety ones? Of course you do. And you can, with these new ensembles which are practically causing a riot in our own home town. For the price of a coat, you may have three pieces—hat, coat or jacket, and muff. Naturally, if you bought the coat or jacket separately it would be less; but why not rake in the glamour while you can? Or you might post a note to Santa, for that elegant seal dyed coney ensemble we show (really can't tell it from beaver!) which includes the three-quarter trotteur, the adorable coronet of a hat (fur on suede) and the muff, complete for $69! Very princessy is the Krimmer lamb coat and muff at $69; with the high hat not much more. Love and Marriage

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Cupid didn't strike me until I was 29 years of age; never before have I been in love with any other girl. But I find myself devotedly in love with a girl of 18.

I haven't told her how I feel or paid her any particular attention, because I'm wondering if the difference in our ages is too great.

She seems to care a lot about me, and we get along well.

T. P.

Why this grandfatherly point of view, when you're only 29 years of age? No one thinks 10 years' difference is a bar to a happy marriage, when the difference is in favor of the man. If it were the other way 'round and the lady were 10 years your senior, you might question and hesitate. But even then, a wife a decade older than her husband has contributed to many a happy marriage.

You Can Be Beautiful

Perfect Color Harmony

By ARLINE GOULD

PERFECT HARMONY between your lips and fingertips takes a bit of doing. You'll find your light-style polishes mated with lipsticks, but how about all those beloved off-shades, those muted rose shades?

Well, it's no longer the problem it was. Not with our find, it isn't. We've found an outstanding number of colors in a new nail polish, and part of each package is given over to a rondelle of cream rouge which is the exact harmonizer for your cheeks and your lips.

Now, whether you choose a rose-pink tint or an intense mahogany red . . . or a purple-tinged flame . . . or a brown-rose so subtle, so becoming to everyone . . . you don't have to worry about your lipstick.

The cream rouge is fine, smooth, and spreads with utmost lightness on your cheeks. Dip in for a little more, and it deepens delightfully on your lips.

Part of the good news has to do with the price—the whole thing, rouge and polish, costs no more than any regular brand of nail lacquer, 60c for the complete set.

You'll find this nail polish, made on a new formula, has particularly excellent lasting qualities. It seems almost impossible to chip and it spreads on evenly and with a high buffed lustre.

If you'd like to learn about this new arrival in town, a two-tint glamourizer of lip and cheek rouge and harmonizing nail polish for 60c, phone Arline Gould LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30 or write.

The Last Cruise

By Anthony Reed

A Novel of Love and Adventure Complete on This Page

YOU TAKE a typical Westchester commuter—good Republican, pillar of the community, believer in all that is right and proper, and you have R. Elliott Davies.

Anyhow, you take a fellow like him, and blend into his soul the salt of a hundred sea-faring ancestors, and what have you got? Not a sea-faring man pure and simple—and not a commuter pure and simple—you have that miserable creature, a yachtsman with a conscience.

Miserable, because yachts and consciences are not entirely compatible possessions for a young man on the rise with a charming slip of a wife—and Jerry Davies was all of that.

"Well," he told Jerry, "I've been getting rather tired of sailing, anyhow." He attempted a cheerful grin. "This is as good an excuse as any to get rid of the Shark."

Jerry looked at him quietly for a moment and when she spoke her voice was soft.

"Oh—isn't there any other way? How about a raise?"

R. Elliott chuckled, somewhat bitterly. Young attorneys, even when appreciated in a big law firm, do not experience very frequent raises. And De Gonslop, Wheefle, Gromp and Snook, his employers, had been very generous on the occasion of the Davies wedding. Decidedly, a raise was not in order, but the catch in Jerry's voice warned him to proceed with caution.

"We'll see what we can do," he said.

Nevertheless, he kept the project of selling the Shark firmly in the back of his mind. It was hard, but there was no choice. And so, after several conferences, they managed between them to turn out an advertisement for the classified columns of an evening paper. It came to the notice of none other than Hepplewhite de Gonslop himself.

"Schooner, perfect in every detail," he read aloud, "and well found. Thirty-eight by nine, gaff-rigged, new paint, Cyclops auxiliary. New sails. Inquire owner."

An address followed under initials, and Mr. De Gonslop turned to his secretary.

"Miss Jorgson, I think that's just what I want for Henry." Miss Jorgson's neat brown head bowed in agreement at this mention of the De Gonslop nephew, a pleasant, if somewhat loopy undergraduate, and the apple of his uncle's eye. "Get in touch with the owner, and look into it, please."

It was with some dismay, that R. Elliott greeted the lone response to his advertisement. Of course he had made up his mind that the Shark must be sold, but this put the farewell unpleasantly near at hand. And, on top of this, the fact that De Gonslop himself was the prospective purchaser was difficult to face. The sale of used sailing yachts generally follows the principles associated with horse-trading, and the buyer must beware. Although in excellent shape, the Shark had one or two little eccentricities that might detract somewhat from her price.

Ordinarily, no mention would be made of these. But to his own employer no such reticence could be considered. With a heavy heart he called Miss Jorgson's extension, and told her that he was the owner of the boat, in which Mr. De Gonslop was interested.

There was a slight pause, and then his superior's secretary returned to the line.

"Mr. De Gonslop would like to see you at once," she said.

"Well, well," the older man was in a jovial humour, "so you're the yatchsman who's turning landlubber. I've always heard that the saltwater meant a good deal to you, Davies. What's persuading you to give it up?"

"I've another interest a very important one, Mr. De Gonslop. There's going to be another Davies."

Hepplewhite De Gonslop's keen blue eyes surveyed him shrewdly. Quickly and surely his mind sought and found the real reason. Yachts, he knew, even modest ones, were apt to take most of the extra money available to a youthful husband. And when an additional member of the family was on the way, that extra would be needed in other directions.

"What's your idea of a fair price, Davies?" he asked.

In all conscience, R. Elliott felt that the Shark would be ideal for Henry De Gonslop, or any other young man, and the sale was quickly concluded.

"There's one favor I'd like to ask," R. Elliott said, after details were settled. "Jerr—that is Mrs. Davies, and I—we're deeply attached to the Shark. Would it make much difference if the delivery isn't made for another week? We'd like to take a last cruise in her sir. Jut a weekend cruise. Of course I'll be responsible for her condition."

"I think that's quite all right, Davies," said his employer. "Yes indeed. Take Friday off, and make it a good one."

IN LIMELIGHT

When R. Elliott had left he called his secretary again.

"Miss Jorgson, please bring me the record of the cases young Davies has handled during the past year," he requested, "and please see that I'm not disturbed for the rest of the afternoon."

Friday morning was clear, as Jerry and R. Elliott stood in the club tender approaching the Shark at her mooring.

For a few seconds there was a gentle, bumping jar, followed by a violent swerve and a rending crash.

"Remember the time—" Jerry began, but her husband silenced her with a gesture.

"We mustn't talk like that," he said, "or we'll be weeping through three days instead of enjoying this last cruise."

Provisions aboard and the anchor weighed, they slipped slowly through the little harbor under power, raising sail when they reached the sound. They were bound for a small inlet on the Long Island side, some 40 miles out an ideal place for clear, sand-bottomed swimming, with a deserted beach where there would be no interference in the building of a charcoal fire for the broiling of thick steaks.

At the entrance to the inlet a reef of sharp rocks and a sand bar approached each other like the pinching claws of a giant crab. Through that narrow space the water rushed at high speed and with great power as the tides changed, and it was these that the seamanship of R. Elliott had frequently been put to the test. So often, in fact, that he relaxed, enjoying the sight from his own deck for the last time, just a moment too long. It was during that moment, with the tiller a trifle off the course, that it occurred.

For a few seconds there was a gentle, bumping jar, followed by a violent swerve and a rending crash. Picking himself up from the cockpit where he had been thrown, R. Elliott heard Jerry call from the water.

Bounding across the deck, he reached her just as the tide was sweeping her away. He soon had her back aboard. Then they sat on the deck, looking at each other, and if tears were in Jerry's eyes they weren't far from R. Elliott's.

No matter how reasonable a man was, R. Elliott miserably thought, he was only human, and Hepplewhite De Gonslop was sure to be disappointed—badly. While no official action would be taken, there would be a loss of confidence—and such things are important. At last he made an impatient gesture.

That ripping noise had told of caved-in planks, and when he dove over the next morning, his exploring fingers found the jagged edges he feared. Quickly they ran around the aperture to determine its extent and depth, when they came upon a waddy substance, apparently paper of some kind, between the inner and outer skins of the hull.

For some reason, he could never tell why afterward, he brought a handfull of it back with him to the deck where Jerry waited.

The answer to her unspoken question was on his face, and she dropped her head, catching sight of the clust of paper in his hand.

"Counsellor!" she cried—"where did you get that money?"

Forty-one hundred dollars when they counted it. The old reports that the Sharp had once been owned by rum-runners must have been based on fact.

Again and again he dove, until he had completely exhausted the treasure trove. At the end they counted a sum that staggered them —$68,000. Stowing it in a duffle bag, they made their way to the nearest village, leaving the Shark to be picked up by men from the shipyard where she would be repaired.

Miss Jorgson was smiling when he approached Hepplewhite de Gonslop's office.

"Oh, Mr. Davies," she said, "Mr De Gonslop left this note for you Friday. He won't be in for a few days."

R. Elliott's face relaxed as he read.

"—— would be a great shame to deprive a real sailor of his craft ——" the note said, "—— If, as I suspect, finances have something to do with it. Looking over the work you've done during the past year makes it a pleasure to present you with this well-earned increase which should meet certain responsibilities. So, let this have been your last cruise, let us say, under the pressure of worry. Keep the Shark, and bring up your new crew to sail her."

THE END.

How to Make a Splendid Cough Remedy at Home

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you about four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is actually a surprisingly effective, quick-acting cough remedy. Promptly, you feel it taking hold. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen anything better for prompt and pleasing results.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Auto Gossip

By OTTO SCOOPS

Progress since the turn of the century has been gauged by the development of the automobile . . . Thirty-nine years ago only 4192 cars were produced in the United States—Ten years later, in 1910, production jumped to 187,000 By 1920 it had reached 2,227,349. This year it will exceed 4,500,000—It is a healthy condition and nothing can be wrong with a country that continues its progressive stride . . . George Brown, III, UC salesman at Packard Motor, is in the market for a good used 1935 Oakland coupe . . . Anyone hearing of same, please communicate with him—Dan Hurley of the above outfit, is proud as all get-out about his new grandson.

Eddie Evans, well known auto salesman of Arthur Coombs, is flying to Chicago shortly for a well earned vacation . . . Wilbur Keith, former Cadillac salesman, is now knocking them dead at Pontiac Village . . . Congratulations and lots of happiness to Mildred Burke of the Henley-Kimball Co. on her recent wedding . . . Bill Meaney is back again at Oakley Motors, formerly Fells Parkway—His enterprising salesmanship should bring with him many of his satisfied customers.

Jack DeJaney, Sr. and Jr., Boston's oldest Chevrolet dealers, are keeping things humming as only these two veterans know how . . . Congratulations, Dan MacDevitt, on your swell fight in winning the school committee job, best of luck . . . Charlie Dailey's service dept. at Dailey Chevro'et, So. Boston, is more than holding its own—The good work he turns out is rewarded by steady work . . . All the UC salesmen at Cadillac Olds are attending a dinner and the Rodeo this week as a reward for UC sales during Auto Show week.

Talking about swing, Moe Steinberg is certainly in the groove—As a matter of fact he grooves tires for the Paul Tire Co. . . . We are taking this opportunity to tell Leo Weeder of T. C. Baker's that the only way to get rid of a co'd is to stay home in bed till it's gone . . . The C. E. Fay Co. UC dept. is moving into their main building . . . This will knit the units together more closely and tend to give more efficiency . . . Arthur Ohliger, one of the best known service mgrs. in the biz, is now at the Hughes Motor Mart in Cambridge, where he will be happy to greet his many old customers and friends.

Joe Powell of Bowman Pontiac, Camb., insisted on a cream-colored Pontiac demonstrator and finally got it . . . Bill Smith and Red Connors of the Medford Motor Mart are now selling the 1940 Studebaker line . . . Frank Egan, UC mgr. at Hub Chevrolet, Camb., was seen back on the job after his recent illness—Glad to see you back, Frank . . . Connolly's Brighton Buick is a busy hive of activity now that the new Buick is selling so fast . . . That smart automobile you see sailing up North Beacon st. in Brighton is the new car that Harold Horn of the G. M. C. Truck has gotten to match his station in life.

Mel Murray, Gen. Mgr. Crescent Motors, Revere, is back on the job, after a brief illness . . . Coombs Motor Co. of Watertown, Ford Dealers, hit a new high in sales for October and are going big for heavy sales record in November. This firm is under the able management of Mr. Herman Brooks . . . Do you know that Richard Dwyer, head of the Newton Buick Co., is Civilian Instructor of firearms for the Newton Police? . . . If you miss the Golden Telephone Voice at Hoover Motors, you will know that Mrs. Beatrice Dwyer has gone home to keep house . . . Good luck "B" . . . Howard Schramm, gen. mgr. Hoover Motors is back to work hitting them again in his old stride . . . The boys at Murphy Chevrolet might have the last laugh yet. Some signs of deceiving—page Miss Quinn . . . Nat Rosnov, the body and soul of Albany Motors, is taking unto himself another body and soul when he gets married this Saturday with many of our esteemed dealers expected to be present . . . George Hutt is keeping Joe Brodigan's name high and mighty with his capable handling of the service dept. . . . Harold O'Neil's resurfaced used car lot looks like a well planned speedway, you ought to try it some time . . .

AUSTEN LAKE

College Presidents Duck Football Rap

DON'T LOOK NOW BUT THE AMALGAMATED Brotherhood of College Presidents and the smooth-chins and gray-beards of the faculties are going to raise merry hell over the so-called football octopus next month. I have a confidential letter from a major college dean of my acquaintance tipping me off. Maybe I shouldn't consort with such pipple.

AUSTEN LAKE

This is some more ad nauseum! Because football's evils are not the fault of the athletic directors, no matter who or where they be or what the degree of their institution's purity.

The college directors are hired by the college trustees, after careful culling of the candidates, to run their lavish sport palaces by (1) catering to the paying public, (2) keeping their varsity shows up to attractive turnstiles, (3) matching income with outgo, (4) pacifying (sic) the fussy old boys.

Nor is it the fault of the varsity football coach, whom the athletic director hires for his smartness in the head and his knack of winning games. No victories, no sport page publicity, no capacity crowds, no balanced budget, no jobs for coaches and directors.

So where there is football hypocrisy it lies largely in the lips of the college presidents and the posts of faculty command. Despite their perrenial yowling they knew the sure-fire cure but lack sufficient spunk to enforce it.

The Cure Is Painful

COME, HORATIUS, WHAT IS THIS marvelous panacea?

By tearing down the huge concrete stadiums to the seating needs of the student enrollment plus a limited number of guests, by abolishing all admission charge, by levying an athletic head tax on the scholars and admitting them to games on identification cards—then, and only then, will the mardi-gras aspect ahrivel, turnstile profits stop and with them the high-salaried coaches, big team guarantees and intersectional fanfare.

Public interest would soon fade with the diminished spectacle. Sport-page glorification of adolescent youth would keep pace. Recruiting of beefy schoolboys, grandstand bottle-tippling, goal-post riots, and, perhaps, jobs for sport columnists would wither away. There is no end to the blessings.

Then football would go back to the pleasant autumnal diversion of our grandaddies. No more high pressure, mutual distrust, or Carnegie reports. The game, along with its subsidiary sports, like hockey, basketball, track, baseball, crew, lacrosse, swimming, golf, etc., would return to intramural pay-as-you-go and go-as-you-please.

The Prexies Don't Dare

BUT, HORATIUS, WOULD THE COLLEGE presidents dare to pioneer with such a shotgun cure?

A few have! A few more might! But the bulk lack the intestinal gumption lest enraged alumni yank them off their pedestals and cause them to be college presidents no more. Why? Because the college prexies also have their athletic budgets, in which the cost of the phys-ed department is usually lifted from the academic purse by football receipts. No small item!

Also there is the carnival glamour in football which brings the alumni trooping back on Dad's day or the big, traditional game with Rumplepuss U, to relieve their undergraduate scenes and be inspired to contribute sums of money to the new building campaign, faculty pension fund and endowments. So, many a college president realizes too well that football, with its seasonal charm, student bands, screaming horseshoes of humanity and press ballyhoo, is the strongest link between the old grad and his ivy-mantled halls with their overhanging elms and their time-stained gates.

Did you ever hear of an old alumnus coming back to hear Professor Stuffshirt, Ph.D, hose physics down the throats of his scholars? And if the professor's pupils fail to buck the college exams successfully, do the alumni yell outraged hollers for his skin? No! Some of our educational mossbacks drone through their courses year after year, never brightening their doggerel with interest-catching novelties never trimming their cultural show with inspirational tricks, but merely rehashing the same old hum-drum. Their jobs are safe.

But let a coach lose a few football games and the majority of old Josers from Punxatawny to Painted Post, scream for his pelt. So, precautly, Old Prexy and his faculty stooges are hunting for a new athletic director and football coach.

Poor Ole Octopus!

IF THERE IS A FOOTBALL OCTOPUS, if most of the colleges are in the circus business while pretending not to be so, I would put it squarely up to the Presidents and their faculty shills. For in many institutions the size of the freshmen class depends in some measure on the success of the varsity team and kids flock in proportion as the team hands out lickings. Which is why, in addition to his technical duties each college coach is called upon, in off seasons, to tour the alumni centers, dropping after-dinner pearls to the grizzled old boys or interviewing husky schoolkids whom some high-spirited grad has whistled from the weeds.

But, Horatius, would you have the good old college Octopus harpooned?

I would not! I'm fond of the ole Octopus! Only I'm sick of hearing college heads squeal scandal at something which is their own baby. It amounts to prescribing Swedish massage for a case of indigestion when a good dose of castor oil is indicated. Only the college prexies don't want to hold the patient's nose.

M'LAUGHRY HAND INJURY CRUSHES BROWN HOPES

By DAVE CLUECK

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 8—Brown's hard luck team which started the season as one of New England's potential powerhouses, but subsequently missed fire in its three major contests is ready to whip Yale Saturday, and claim the last three games on the schedule.

John McLaughry, Brilliant Brown Back

Injuries to key men and game mistakes have cost the Bruins wins from Colgate, Holy Cross and Princeton despite the fact that they gained an aggregate of 193 yards and eight first downs more than the rival trio.

Tuss McLaughry declares that his team has lots of power, a good running attack and a defense that was strong enough to hobble the mighty chargers from Holy Cross. With all the boys ready for action at New Haven, things look dark brown for "Ducky" Pond's open shop Elis.

John McLaughry, the mentor's mighty son, like his Andover roommate, Torby Macdonald, and Cornell's Vin Eichler, has been a victim of the "captain jinx."

In his sophomore and junior years John was the hardest running and one of the most versatile backs in the East, with a reserved position among 1939's All-Americas.

Ten days before the start of this season he cut his left hand badly when a porcelain bath faucet cracked in his powerful hammer thrower's grip, severing nerves, arteries and tendons.

Fortunately younger brother Bob was present, to apply a tourniquet, or the husky captain would have lost a pool of blood from the spurting member.

Doctors failed to catch one of the tendons in the fore finger when they stitched him up, costing him the function of that digit. The nerves failed to heal properly, and every time the hand is hit it suffers a partial paralysis.

Captain John was slated to play tailback as key man in the Brunonians offense, but this injury impaired his ball handling so much that he was forced to return to his blocking post.

He is still the best block and tackle boy on the club, but his passing and punting have naturally suffered, and he will have difficulty regaining the form that made him one of the best hammer throwers in New England.

At Princeton, a high pass from center slipped through his nerveless fingers and rolled over the goal line to give the Tigers a

Yale Staff Stays; Win Lose, Draw

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 8 (AP)—Even though a troup of Yale football players who were first string men up till the Dartmouth rout were looking for work today, so far as their jobs with the starting team were concerned, the coaching staff had no worries over possible loss of employment.

A precedent-breaking midseason announcement from Athletic Director Malcolm Farmer made this as definite as Dartmouth's gridiron superiority over the Eli.

"There will be no changes in our football coaching," he said. "The coaching staff is very good and will be retained, win, lose, or draw."

SUPPORTS COACHES

The statement had a quieting effect on the Yale football situation which became lighted up like a carnival midway Monday when Coach Ducky Pond touched off a display of verbal pyrotechnics.

Angered at the way his team played in losing 33 to 0 to the Indians, Pond labeled his squad, defeated in three of five games to date, "the worst team I've ever coached at Yale" and demoted nine men from the first eleven.

Yale coaches ordinarily don't make public statements like that; nor do athletic officials ordinarily announce the re-engagement of coaches early in November.

Thus, Farmer's action was interpreted today as meaning that the athletic governing body stands squarely behind the coaches come what may in the Brown, Princeton and Harvard games remaining on the Bulldog schedule.

SEVENTH YEAR

The blow-off created relatively little excitement in student circles, and the Yale News hinted that Pond's statement might have been intended chiefly to work the players up to a fever pitch and that most of the "fired" regulars would be back in there Saturday against Brown.

Conceding that Yale's showing against Dartmouth was a "terrible performance," the student publication said "it will do no harm to make them a little sore, as Mr. Pond has done."

Pond himself has said the first-stringers could have their jobs back if they could prove themselves worthy, and since Monday the chastised players have been working like truck-horses.

The 1940 season for which Pond has been rehired will be the seventh for him and his assistant, Earle "Greasy" Neale. Other staff members are Ivan Williamson, Bill Renner, Emerson "Spike" Nelson and Gerry Ford.

John worked doubly hard to compensate for this defect and is now ready to play the kind of game which has made him personally responsible for many Bear wins in the past.

Tommy Nash, ball carrying end, is also ready for some service, and may provide McLaughrey with a much needed get away runner. Finkelstein, best receiver on the wing squad, is off the doctod's list. Ducsing, High, Savignano, Detweiler and Stepczyk are rounding into top shape for the Eli encounter.

Coach McLaughrey is not paying much attention to the stories of ructions in New Haven, and says that he expects "to see the Yale regulars in there at game time." A lot of work was done on pass offense and defense in what was called the snappiest drill of the year.

The starting lineup for Saturday will have Prodgers and Bates, ends; McNeill and Taylor, tackles; Manrodt and Mawhinney, guards; Crooker, center; Blount, Stepczyk, McLaughrey and High in the backfield.

CONNIE MACK FROWNS ON PLAYOFF SCHEME

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8 (AP)—Gerry Nugent, president of the Phils, came up today with a counter-proposal to Larry McPhail's plan to supplant the World Series with post-season games between American and National League baseball clubs according to their standings.

It was: Why not adopt the Shaughnessey playoff system, with the winners of the final playoff meeting in a World Series?

Conie Mack gave the idea as frigid a reception as he had the suggestion of McPhail, executive vice-president of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"It's all right for the minors but it won't do for the majors," commented the 76-year-old leader of the Philadelphia Athletics.

"I'll never agree to anything but the first place finishers playing in the World Series. I disagree with any kind of playoffs."

Nugent said:

"McPhail's plan is all wet compared to the results that have been attained by the Shaughnessey playoffs in the minor leagues," Nugent continued.

"Why not start the regular season April 15 and end it on Sept. 15 or 20? The final two weeks of September are always washouts at the gate except for the pennant contenders.

"The Shaughnessey playoffs would stimulate late interest at this time and keep the fans pepped up for the World Series.

"With any of four clubs in each league likely to win the title and qualify for the World Series, interest among the players as well as the fans would never die."

Under the Shaughnessey system, the team finishing first in the regular season plays a best three-of-five series with the third-place club. The team finishing second meets the fourth-place club in a similar series. The winners then meet in the best-of-seven series.

Nugent said that under the Shaughnessey system the Yankees, who slaughtered Cincinnati in the World Series last month, might have been eliminated by the Boston Red Sox.

Maybe he has something there.

Smokers themselves have made PHILLIES America's №1 cigar

Phillies is far and away first choice with the EXPERIENCED SMOKERS of the country. They have found that they can count on Phillies always being the same fine quality—always delivering the same satisfying enjoyment.

It's only natural that real smokers should PREFER PHILLIES. It's the only cigar in history good enough to become the biggest-selling brand at 10¢—and then be given to smokers for only 5¢. Guaranteed the same imported wrapper . . . same ripe Domestic . . . exactly the same quantity and quality of fine Havana tobacco.

EVERY TIME you call for Phillies, your good judgment is confirmed by millions of other men. Day after day, from coast to coast, smokers walk up to cigar counters and put down more money for Phillies than for any other cigar at any price.

For better smoking SWITCH TO PHILLIES only 5¢

HEARST ALL-AMERICA TRIALS ON MONDAY

By JACK CONWAY.

The great Hearst All-America amateur boxing tournament will open with trial contests at the Arena on next Monday night. The class of the simon pure glove flingers will compete in this tournament.

Added importance is given to the All-America tournament this year on account of the fact the survivors of the Eastern finals will journey to San Francisco to compete in the grand nationals on Jan. 25. Boxers from all sections of the United States will take part in the San Francisco tournament, and it is felt that the New England and other Eastern boxers will give a creditable account of themselves.

"California, Here We Come!" has already become the battle cry of the New England boxers who will strive for Hearst All-America honors.

There will be competition in eight open classes at the first of the trial contests. The classes will be at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds and in the heavyweight division.

TWO NOVICE CLASSES

There will also be action for novices at 126 and 147 pounds. The Hearst All-America committee feels that novice boxers give the fans thrills and that they should have an opportunity to develop their ability in important tournaments.

The novice end of the tournament will run through the New England finals, which will be staged at the Garden on Dec. 11.

Amateur boxing has been enjoying a big season. This means that the Hearst All-America tournament will set new highs.

All boxers wishing to compete should send their entries to Tom Kanaly, Irish American A. C., Boston Arena, St. Botolph st., Boston.

Boxers must register with J. Frank Facey, secretary, New England A. A. U., No. 36 Prospect st., Cambridge.

President Herb Holm of the New England A. A. U. has given full co-operation of his energetic organization to making the Hearst All-America show a success.

THREE TRIAL TILTS

In addition to the trial bouts at the Arena on next Monday night, there will also be trial contests at the Arena on Nov. 20, Nov. 27 and Dec. 4.

The New England finals will be staged at the Garden on Dec. 11, while the Eastern finals will take place at the Garden on Dec. 18.

The trial bouts will be offered at a price scale of 55 cents to $1.10.

GANSETT RACE MEET EXTENDED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 8 (AP)—Permission to operate the fall meet an extra week was granted to Narragansett Park today by Louis C. Gerry, administrator of racing and athletics in Rhode Island. This will bring the last day of the meeting to Nov. 18 instead of Nov. 11 as was originally scheduled.

GABBY HARTNETT

Gabby Stays; Buries Hatchet With Wrigley

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 (INS)—Rugged, ruddy Charles Leo ("Gabby") Hartnett has agreed that two heads are better than one, and therefore he will continue as manager of the Cubs in 1940.

His boss, P. K. Wrigley, expanded on the announcement today with the declaration:

"Hartnett's attitude that he was working separately instead of with the organization was my big grievance. Naturally, I thought the Cubs should have done better in the race (they finished fourth), but maybe I would not have had such thoughts if Gabby had come to me from time to time and expressed his views.

"After all, I was stuck with the team, so was entitled to know what was going on.

"I could have sent for "Gabby," but then there'd have been the usual 'interference' stories."

Gabby, Wrigley intimated, had admitted the error of his ways, had agreed to quit his lone wolf role, and be a nice, amiable shap and talk over the whys and wherefores now and then with the man who pays his salary.

Harnett hasn't been given his contract yet, but will be soon, Wrigley said.

Wrigley took the occasion to deny once more that the Cubs are in the market for Joe Medwick, St. Louis Cards outfielder.

"We are not trying and we are not going to try to buy Medwick," he declared.

Groton, St. Marks Renew Grid Rivalry

Those ancient private school football enemies, Groton and St. Mark's play their 50th game today at Southboro.

Groton with five straight victories in which it has scored a total of 125 points while keeping its own goal line unsmirched against such foes as Pomfret, Middlesex, Brooks, Milton and Boston English, will rule favorite, though records mean nothing when these rivals kick-off.

The Saints whipped Middlesex and Milton, but lost to Boston Latin and were tied by Noble and Greenough.

Bookies Chased Out Of N.Y. by Mutuels

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (AP)—The mirth was gone today from the faces of the men who, all summer long, benignly sat on their stools at the race tracks and smiled as they offered six-to-five on a legitimate two-to-one shot.

The Iron Men—as the pari-mutuel machines are known around horse parks—had been voted in to replace the bookies and so passed the last stronghold of the hand books.

Up and down Broadway, especially at such places as Lindy's, they did their best to put up a brave front last night, but in the end they looked lower than a chalk player with his last cent on an odds-on favorite which wound up last.

MARA WAS SMART

Once the horse parks from Tiajuana down in old Mexico to Saratoga upstate in New York catered to the men with slates.

They made their prices from information, and what the public thought or wagered mattered little. Each bookie made his own price.

Then only New York was left. Tom Shaw, lean and glum-faced; the big Irishman, Tim Mara; Pete Blong and the others carried on, but they knew that in the end the "Iron Man" would get them.

Mara saw that the business was up the stretch with the winner in the hands of the voters a month or so ago and he hung up his slate and concentrated instead on making the New York Giants, the pro football team, a money-maker.

BOOKIES HOMELESS

And so today there were tears for sure in the beer of the men who made the prices, albeit they always claimed to lose money year after year.

"They bet us right off the boards," sighed one, wryly. "The red board is up."

Special Train For A.-E. Grid Game

Special train service for the Andover-Exeter football game next Saturday will be operated from Boston and from Andover, it was announced by the Boston & Maine Railroad.

The special will leave the North Station at 11:30 a. m., on the holiday morning, and will stop at Andover at 12 noon. On the return trip, the special will leave Exeter at 4:30 p. m. or a short time after the game is over, and will then run express to Andover and Boston.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

UNDER THE leadership of the Massachusetts Racing Commission, headed by Chairman Charles F. Connors, the Racing Commissions of Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Massachusetts will meet in Boston on November 20 to discuss more uniform rules for the governing of the turf sport.

Representatives of the three New England horse tracks, Suffolk Downs, Narragansett Park and Rockingham Park, have been invited to attend the meeting and make any suggestions they wish in regard to rule changes.

"We shall discuss the new starting gate that releases all the horses at the same time," said Chairman Connors. "I do not believe the present system is perfect, and it often works against a particular group of bettors. We have frequent cases of an assistant starter holding two horses. No matter how honest the assistant starter may be he is unable to release both horses at the same time. Try dropping books from each hand, and you will find you will not let go of each of them at the same time no matter how hard you try.

"There will also be the matter of penalties. I think three and five-day penalties are not sufficient. Penalties should be made severe enough to prevent a recurrence of the offense.

"In many cases the jockeys who pull horses and violate rules are only the tools of higher ups like trainers and owners. If the jockeys are punished severely, they will not take orders that are improper, while they are likely to reveal the names of the sinister individuals behind their operations."

Massachusetts Has Fought "Doping" Evil

I ASKED CHAIRMAN CONNORS if any action would be taken to have a uniform drive against those unscrupulous individuals who "dope" horses.

"We shall discuss the question of stimulants," was the reply. "I have been a member of the national committee that has worked to prevent the doping of horses. In Massachusetts we have had very few cases of doping, but where any have occurred we have given them the widest publicity.

"When a racing commission finds that a horse has been tampered with, it is its duties to suspend the parties involved and to give all of the facts to the public through the press as soon as possible. Wrong doing is never corrected if it is condoned or hidden. Wide publicity of every case where a horse has been stimulated has helped curtail this practice in Massachusetts."

Racing Secretaries to Give Views

IT IS EXPECTED that Charley McLennan, racing secretary at Suffolk Downs, and Bob Shelley, racing secretary at Narragansett Park, will attend the meeting. McLennan will also speak for Racing Secretary John Turney of Rockingham Park.

Tom Thorp, steward at the three New England tracks; Billy Almy, steward at Rockingham Park and at Suffolk Downs, and Sam Nuchols, steward at Narragansett Park, will attend the meeting.

The three State Commissions will give serious consideration to suggestions made by the racing officials.

Racing has become big business for the States as well as for the tracks, and the coming meeting should go a long way toward making the rules more uniform and also to eliminate practices that are harmful to the turf game.

The readiness with which the Rhode Island and New Hampshire commissions accepted the invitation of Chairman Connors and his two associates, Commissioners Pierce and Allen, is proof of their desire to co-operate in a general program that will improve racing.

John Shepard feels that an all-round sports authority will give better results to his station than one well-versed in only one sport.

HARVARD, CORNELL FAVORED

Ivy League Harriers Duel in New York

A group of runners came down along the banks of the Charles These runners were the members of the undefeated Harvard hill and dale team which will be the co-favorite with Cornell to win the Ivy League cross-country title in the heptagonal meet at New York this Saturday.

The Crimson harriers, coached by Jaakko Mikkola, have won from B. U., Holy Cross, Dartmouth, New Hampshire, Yale, and Princeton this year and should annex the heptagonal meet on Saturday.

Jaakko is reluctant to praise his team too much, but he admits that his squad has a fine chance to take the title. "If we run our very best I think that we should win, but it will have to be our very best to beat Cornell," said the Harvard coach.

Cross-country is a sport that does not have spectators. The Harvard troupe run over hill and dale and wind up at the Newell boat house after a five-mile jaunt. It is a gruelling sport, but one which is excellent preparation for the future distance men in track.

7 MEN AS HARVARD TEAM

Harvard will run a seven-man team in the big meet at New York Fenn Tuttle, a senior who won the two-mile race against Yale as a cub, is the leader of the team. In cross-country it is the duty of the captain to stay with other members of his team in the rear and to urge them on. Tuttle is one of the finest captains Harvard has ever had.

JIM LIGHTBODY

The outstanding member of the harriers is Langdon Burwell. He has the greatest lung capacity of any of the students who have been examined at the fatigue lab. Burwell has placed in every meet to date, although this is his first year of running. He is the dark horse to win the Hep title from more experienced runners.

Another outstanding member of the harrier team is Capt. Jim Lightbody, better known for his brilliant running on the Harvard relay teams and in the 440. Last year Jim ran one of the fastest 600's ever turned in at the Boston Garden.

Little Dave Somboli is another standout on Jaakko's team. Dave gets in a lot of early morning practice because he delivers the Harvard Crimson each morning before breakfast Somboli placed third in the two mile event against the Eli last spring

Crimson Must Do Best to Win

HARVARD, CORNELL, RIVALS

Other members of the Harvard squad who have carried the team to an undefeated season are Dick Wing, Gene Clark and Joe McLoughlin

The title will be a struggle between Harvard and the Big Red from Cornell. Dartmouth, Yale and Princeton all figure to be in the fight for second place. Penn and Columbia have weak teams and do not figure to upset the dope.

AILING EAGLES LEAVE FOR WEST TOMORROW

Head Coach Frank Leahy and his Boston College gridmen start their one and only trek of the season tomorrow evening. The Eagles will leave Newtonville at 7 o'clock bound for the West and a game of football with Gus Dorais' Detroit Titans.

Of the first string squad Lou Kidhardt, out for the season with torn ligaments in his left leg received in Auburn, and Frank Davis, hard-hitting sophomore fullback, will not compete in Detroit.

Ed Cowhig, Team "B" signal caller, bothered by a knee injury for three weeks, may watch the game from the sidelines.

Davis, whose work in the Auburn, St. Anslem and Temple games which won him Coach Leahy's praise, is confined to his Somerville home with a badly infected throat and will remain in bed for the duration of the week—possibly longer. Owning an infected throat is bad enough, but when it causes a man to miss the only trip on his team's schedule it's really a sour dose.

COWHIG HURT AGAIN

Cowhig received a belt in the bad knee yesterday forcing him to the shower room. Ed himself feels that he'll be in shape to face the Titans, and incidentally relieve the overworked Henry Toczylowski, first string quarterback.

SET ON STARTING TEAM

After yesterday's battle Coach Leahy went on record with the statement "the starting lineup for Saturday's clash will compare favorably with last week's opening cast." That means that Goodreault and Lukachik, will work the ends, Yauckoes and sophomore Morro will play the tackles, Capt. Schwotzer and Kerr will open at guard, and Chet Gladchuk will start at center. Toczylowski will call signals to mates McGowan, Ananis and Cignetti.

If there are changes they will place Lou Montgomery at right halfback, Dick Harrison at left end and either Charlie O'Rourke or Bob Jauron at left halfback.

Montgomery might start in an attempt to run the opposition dizzy and set the stage for some powerhouse off tackle romps by high scoring, Aanais. Harrison is ready to assume his former first string job at left end and a slight Lukachik knee injury might aid his assumptions.

TITANS TRICKY

Backfield Coach Ed McKeever, who scouted Detroit last week, calls the Titans "average size college gridders, as big as we are, but awfully tricky."

He rates substitute signal caller John Biringer, halfbacks Al Ghesquire and sophomore Harry Groth and fullback John McDermott "positive dynamite liable to explode in Boston College's face at any time." In the line Capt. Emerson Addison, the center; Ted Pavelec, tackle, and pass catching ends Bill Schauer and Frank Hayes are liable to prove bothersome.

Lucky Teter Back With Show at Garden

Lucky Teter, the man of a thousand lives, will risk life and limb once again at the Boston Garden, starting next Wednesday, and continuing through November 19th, with the world's foremost automobile and motorcycle stunt star slated to present the outstanding automobile stunts in his vast repertoire of thrillers.

Ably supported by his Hell Drivers, the world's largest aggregation of professional automobile and motorcycle stunt stars, TETER will unfold his most hazardous feat—his now famous car jump.

Barry, Williams Elevated To Terriers First Team

Pat Hanley's surprise move in announcing that Bill Barry would start at quarterback for Boston University against the University of Cincinnati next Saturday automatically pushed Ralph Salvati down to the second team.

This may seem odd in view of the fact that Salvati is a fullback and Barry is a signal caller but the story is that with Barry in the first backfield, the Terriers have no kicker.

Because of this, Walter Williams, sophomore triple-threat, moves into fullback.

Salvati and Williams are rated pretty much on a par but Salvati rates starting honors because of his experience and more adept handling in the tricky Warner double wingback offense.

But Salvati can start only when George Pantano gets the call at quarterback for Pantano and Williams are the only booters on the squad.

So the promotion of Barry means the automatic elevation of Walter Williams, too.

Oddly enough Barry and Williams are both English High School products but they never played together for the Blue and Blue. Bill was an end at English while Williams never played in high school.

Pat Hanley is confident that this pair will play good football Saturday and is not too greatly concerned about their jobs. His worry is whether his two outstanding veteran linemen, Jim McDonald and Ray Needham will be ready. Both boys are suffering from bad knees and their loss will really hurt. As it looks now, Needham is definitely out while McDonald has a chance to play.

Dunn Entited To Laurel Wreath

It's time somebody gave Jimmy Dunn credit.

This may seem strange to laud the Northeastern coach for his team has not won a game this year and the chances are that his Huskies will drop their final encounter to Upsala next Saturday.

Yet, despite this poor record which is due to injuries and all sorts of bad breaks, his team has never given up and has kept trying the knob on victory's door right up to the final whistle in almost every game.

Only against St. Anselm were the Huskies completely outplayed. In every other game they had the edge in statistics but could not cash in on possibilities.

In the Rhode Island game two weeks ago, a missed conversion spelled defeat to the Rams, who were a 3 to 1 choice. The Huskies picked up 16 first downs to 7 but just failed. Last Saturday against a good Springfield team, the Huskies rang up 12 first downs to 8 but failed to click on two touchdown" opportunities finally losing out 19 to 13.

The Huskies have never quit in any game this year. And a coach who can keep morale high and a team trying after a succession of losses is deserving of credit.

Next Saturday it's Upsala and Jimmy Dunn is desperately trying to figure a new backfield. He has lost Ronnie Tubbs his brilliant blocking back because of a fractured wrist but he still refuses to give up.

Right at present Jimmy is converting Phil Sheridan a sophomore center into a blocker and the move may prove successful.

The Northeastern mentor takes what he has, never complains and always does the best job possible under the conditions.

Capacity Crowd To See Exeter Play

EXETER, N. H., Nov. 8—Exeter's football drill was devoted mainly to defense. Head Coach Bill Clark is not sure of his starring lineup.

Director of Athletics Martin W. Souders says the sale of tickets for the Andover game has been brisk, assuring one of the largest crowds in recent years.

Danno Tests Managoff

Bobby Managoff, the 19-year-old Armenian flash from Chicago, faces the biggest test of his youthful career tonight at the Arena when he clashes with Danno O'Mahony, former world's champion. The match headlines Promoter Paul Bowser's all-star mat tournament and will be over the best two falls out of three.

If Bobby wins it is certain he will get an early title chance, and it is possible that he might accomplish the almost impossible and win the world's title before his 20th birthday.

Jumbos Gunning For Wildcats

A fighting Tufts eleven will journey to Durham on Saturday to meet the New Hampshire Wildcats. The Jumbo players are still smarting from their drubbing at the hands of Brown last Saturday and the players are in a belligerent mood.

Tackle Ralph Sherry who suffered a leg injury is on the mend, and indications point to his holding his regular berth again this Saturday.

A neat triangle, with Bruce Russell, Burch Lorett and Ed Nalband, all fighting for regular guard berths, will be broken up as Coach Manly names his two starters.

Don Herring Made Non-Com

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8 (AP)—Don Herring, Princeton University football tackle who lost his left leg as the result of an injury received in the Brown game, was appointed a non-commissioned officer of the university's reserve officer training corps field artillery regiment.

Maj. Solomon Clark, U. S. A., of the Department of Military Science and Tactics, announced Herring's elevation to Cadet sergeant.

Daredevils in Last Class at Topsfield

Five more drivers have entered Saturday's Armistice Day 15-mile auto race at the Topsfield Fair Grounds which has lured th outstanding pilots of the Eastern big car circuit.

Rufe Anderson, Boston; Nick Roberts, Reading; Al Trumball, Winsor Locks, Ct.; John Cavanna, Winstead, Ct., and Don King, Pascoag, R. I., will be among a field of 14 already entered which includes the names of Jerry May, Schenectady, N. Y.; Lou Duncan, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Fred Carpenter, Newark, N. J.; Ed Casterline, Malden; Bob Gardner of Cohasset and Mal Douglas, Taunton.

FOOTBALL FLASHES

By BILL GRIMES

In that fine and very appropriate follow up article he typed about Joe Sheeketski, Arthur Sampson erred in one respect. "Sambo" stated that the loss of the L. S. U. game convinced Joe Sheeketski that he (Joe) had made a mistake when he thought a passing attack was more important than a running attack.

It took Joe two days, not two weeks, to realize his mistake.

Joe Sheeketski realized a week before the L. S. U. game that even with a passer of Ronnie Cahill's ability Holy Cross wouldn't get anywhere unless it developed its running game.

Along with being an exceptionally courageous coach, which he proved by admitting his error in selecting aerials in preference to running plays, Joe Sheeketski demonstrated most convincingly that he is also a brainy mentor by discovering his mistake while the Crusaders were defeating Manhattan 26 to 0.

The young and capable Holy Cross coach told the writer an hour or so before the Holy Cross-Colgate game that he realized that he was off on the wrong foot during the game with the Jaspers. But that, between the Manhattan and L. S. U. games, he didn't have sufficient time to round out the running attack, which had been neglected during the pre-season practice sessions.

SHEEKETSKI POPULAR

Joe Sheeketski is well on his way to become one of the most popular coaches ever connected with any New England college. And he has a fine friend and remarkable running mate in Frank Leahy, Boston College.

Between them, and aided and abetted by their able assistants, Sheeketski and Leahy will manuever Holy Cross and Boston College to football heights never reached by either institution.

Holy Cross and Boston College will lose games under Sheeketski and Leahy but within a few years, the Crusaders and the Eagles will be THE highlights in New England football.

Having been let down badly by the signs and symptoms, which are the only weapons alloted to a prognosticator, from here in, I'm guessing the results of all games played by New England college elevens.

FRIDAY

Middlebury to beat Coast Guard.

SATURDAY

Harvard to beat Army.
Dartmouth to beat Princeton.
B. C. to beat Detroit.
B. U. to beat Cincinnati.
New Hampshire to beat Tufts.
Northeastern to beat Upsala.
Brown to beat Yale.
C. U. to beat St. Anselm's.
H. C. to beat Temple.
Bowdoin to beat Maine.
Colby to beat Bates.
Wesleyan to beat Williams.
Amherst to beat Trinity.
Vermont to beat Norwich.
R. I. S. to beat Conn. U.
A. I. C. to beat Lowell Textile.
Springfield to beat C. C. N. Y.

It's been a long time since Harvard drank to a gridiron win, but the Crimson elbow benders hope to return to action this weekend while Dartmouth is expecting its stay in the undefeated group will extend into next week.

The Eagles and the Terriers will be in the mid-West on Saturday, with the former drawing the tougher assignment, Detroit, and the latter determined to get back into the games won column at the expense of Cincinnati.

The Jumboes, who survived that Brown massacre, will journey to Durham, for a set-to with the University of New Hampshire but Lew Manly is not predicting a Tufts victory, at least, not for publication.

TUSS WORRYING

Already Coach Tuss McLaughry is worrying over the Yale reaction from the Dartmouth slaughter but feels that his Brown Bears have better than an even chance of stopping the Elis, while Coach Jimmy Dunn, Northeastern, expects his Huskies to come up with their initial win of the season against Upsala.

In all probability, the Pine Tree State championship will be won by Bowdoin on Saturday at Orono. The Brunswick Polar Bears have taken Colby and Bates over the jumps and will clinch the title with a victory over Fred Brice's twice-defeated-in-the-state-championship-campaign Black Bears.

However, if the Black Bears of Orono should rear up on their hind legs and crush Adam Walsh's Polar Bears, the winner of the Colby-Bates game, which will be played at Waterville, will share the state diadem with Bowdoin.

Coach Jack Blott can wind up the Little Three title race by maneuvering his Wesleyan Episcopalians to a victory over Charlie Caldwell's Williams eleven. Wesleyan beat Amherst ten days ago but it's been more than three weeks since the Purple celebrated its lone victory of the season.

TOUGH GAME FOR TRINITY

It's quite possible that Trinity will bow out of New England's two team undefeated class on Saturday, for the Cardinals are listed to meet Coach Lloyd Jordan's Lord Jeffs of Amherst. Vermont expects to set the stage for the final game with Middlebury to decide the Green Mountain State championship, by beating Norwich.

After starting off with three defeats, Providence, Brown and Maine, Coach Frank Keaney managed to get his Rhode Island Staters rolling and they went through Brooklyn, Mass. State and Northeastern. However, W. P. I. stood them off last week and now Coach Keaney is figuring out an offense to beat Conn. U.

The undefeated, untied Catholic University eleven should be the means of attracting a large crowd to Fenway Park on Saturday to watch "Dutch" Bergman's Red Birds from Washington, D. C., tangle with Cleo O'Donnell's Hawks of St. Anselm's.

The Red Birds have beaten South Carolina, Elon, Detroit, W. Va., Wesleyan, Miami and Tulsa but they'll have to do some high flying to bring down the Hawks, despite the fact that the O'Donnells were on the short end of games with American International College and Boston College.

St. Anselm's defeat by I. A. C. was strictly a fluke and the Hawks were toppled over by an inspired flock of Eagles.

Undefeated Cardinals Show Wares Saturday

The St. Anselm Hawks are all prepared for the invasion of Catholic University at Fenway Park next Saturday. Coach Cleo O'Donnell and Jackson Cannell have the team on edge for their objective game.

CASIMIR KSYCEWSKI, HARD HITTING C. U. SOPHOMORE TACKLE

Ray McLean, brilliant quarterback of the Hawks, is physically fit for this important fray and close followers of the sport are looking forward to this fleet footed youngster getting back in the scoring race.

With any sort of footing, McLean should have one of his good days for a real defense has been built about this star for this contest.

But the strength of the Cardinals, with six straight victories and no defeats, and victories over Detroit and Oulsa among the six, is not to be sneered at and the indications are Catholic University will be a red hot favorite to win this game, likely, however, to be one of the best in the east on Saturday.

Football plans will see the real Notre Dame system for Head Coach "Dutch" Bergman, Line Coach "Fed" Cotton and End Coach Wayne Miller are all Notre Dame men. Bergman won All-American honors at Notre Dame under Knute Rockne in 1916.

So it is evident the Cardinals will not let the O'Donnell system prevail against them.

Camuso Disappoints Capacity House

NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 8 (AP)—Freddie Camuso, Fall River welterweight, refused to keep his 10-round engagement with Babe Verilla of New Bedford because, Trojan Boxing Club officials said, his last-minute demand for an increased purse was refused.

A packed crowd of 2500 was disappointed because no substitute was available. Club officials said they would file a complaint against Camuso with the Massachusetts Boxing Commission.

TODAY A YEAR AGO—Warren Wright's three-year-old, Bull Lea, won Pimlico Handicap by five lengths from W. S. Kilmer's Alexandria.

THREE YEARS AGO — John Henry Lewis defended world light-heavyweight title by defeating Len Harvey in bout at London.

FIVE YEARS AGO — Lefty Gomez, Yankees' southpay, fanned 19 Japanese batsmen and allowed only two hits as touring major leaguers beat Nippon All-Stars, 10-0.

Five Middie Grid Players Injured

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 8 (AP)—Coach Swede Larson counted noses on his Navy football squad and found five key regulars were nursing old and new injuries which will keep them out of the Columbia game.

Hal Harwood, veteran center, Everett Malcolm, first string back, and Tom McGrath were the new members of the crippled squad. In addition, Larson said there was "not a chance" that Butch Werner and Emmett Wood, backs hurt weeks ago, would be in shape by Saturday.

GEIGES FAMILY WHOLE SHOW AT GRID GAME

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8 (AP)—The football game that Northeast High won from Frankford, 7 to 6, was a Geiges family encounter. Harold E. Geiges is coach of Northeast. His brother, Elwood, coaches Frankford.

Another brother, Carl, was the referee.

Watching from the stands were their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Geiges.

Joe & Asbestos

By KEN KLING

Asbestos cashed a $29 bet yesterday when Turkish Brand came down in front, the roll going to $161. Today he is going back on one he lost at Narragansett. It is Mae 19-1-2 and he slips $3 to win and $3 third.

SARGEANT LOSS TO HARVARD TEAM

The Harvard doctors list was swelled yesterday and running Guard Ernie Sargeant, a senior, was lost for the season. Sargeant was forced to retire from the grid game because of a reoccurence of headaches from a head injury received in an earlier contest.

Ernie was the regular right guard on the Crimson team until he was injured.

Ernie Sargeant, 175, from Seattle, played on the freshman team and was a member of the jayvees for two years before he won his varsity spurs this season as a running guard. Sargeant played in the Princeton contest but was not injured in the game. While on the train returning to Cambridge after the contest, Ernie had a severe headache. The doctors advised the miniget guard to hang up his suit. bridge after the contest, Ernie had a severe headache. The doctor advised the midget guard to hang up his suit.

The loss of sargeant is a blow to Harvard because the Crimson are not very strong in the guard position. Dick Pfister, a 197 soph from South Dakota, will be the starting running guard against the Cadets.

Tom Lacey, a 175 junior, ranks as Dick's replacement. Coach Harlow has moved George Downing, a 200 senior, from the end squad to running guard in an effort to bolster the line.

DOWNING HOLDS RECORD

Downing was a tackle in prep school, and at Harvard has played both end and tackle but has never been a regular. Downing holds the college shotput record.

Other notes of sadness from the doctors is that Joe-Jo Koufman is out of the Army game. Dick Harlow rates Koufman as the outstanding end at Harvard. Koufman has been bothered with injuries most of the season and has only been able to play in the Penn game.

Koufman's position against the Army will be held by either Jim Devine or Gene Lovett. Devine started against the Tigers, but Lovett played a fine game while he was in the engagement.

Dick Harlow sent his troupe through a hard drill yesterday after the Monday layoff and spent a great deal of time on the Harvard passing attack. Spreyer and Macdonald did some excellent tossing while Loren MacKiney, Joe Cardella and Frannie Lee excelled on the receiving end.

SCRUBS MIMIC ARMY

The rest of the practice consisted of a dummy scrimmage to perfect the ragged spots in the Harvard attack and the team also had a long preview of the Army offense as put on by the scrubs.

Bill Coleman, Joe Gardella, and Dick Pfister took light workouts because they are still suffering from bumps received last Saturday. The Harvard trainer has announced that all three will be able to take his starting position against West Point.

Army will use an offense like that of Dartmouth. Army has a very fine passer in "Long John" Hatch and may put on a big aerial show in the Stadium.

Harvard is certain to do a lot of passing against the soldiers. It seems fairly certain the Capt. Macdonald will be in the game, although it may be only for a limited time. Torby is the best passer on the Harvard team and it may be that he will give the Crimson the needed spark to down the Cadets for the first time in ages.

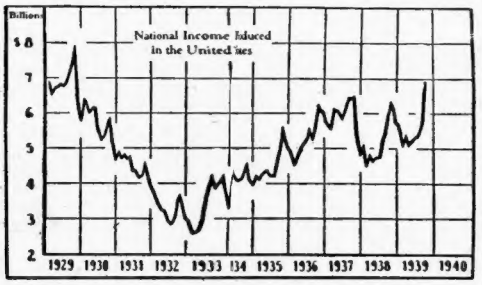
Income for U. S. In Sharp Rise



National income produced in the United States during September scored an unusually sharp rise . . . One that carried the figure to a new high for the past ten years . . .

THE DOLLAR . . . Figure for the month reached $6,945,000,000 . . . An increase of 20.5 per cent over August . . . And 15.6 per cent better than the September 1938 figure . . . Furthermore it was at the annual rate of better than the much touted 80 billion dollars of political planners . . . While the gain for the month is attributed to war speculation it should not be over-emphasized for that reason . . . Since national income figures for the first 10 months of the year stood well above the comparable period a year previous . . . And war had nothing to do with that gain amounting to about 4 billion dollars . . . Although some recession is in prospect during November and December, following an October rise to an even higher peak, the year's total will be the second largest since 1929 . . .

THE CHART . . . Shows the steady, albeit somewhat slow and torturous, climb of national income from the depression low . . . The Alexander Hamilton Institute furnished it as well as the figures used . . . Chief interest is in the implied volume of holiday spending . . . With October likely to set the best figure of any month since 1929 spending this year should reach new post-depression highs . . . A situation which not only will contribute to the prosperity atmosphere but will go a long way toward eliminating any inventory clogging in consumer goods lines . . .

OIL STOCKS . . . Are looked on as one of the major disappointments of the market . . . Just why it is hard for us to determine . . . Perhaps disappointments are more concerned with the hopes of their followers than actualities . . . Too many looked on declaration of war as opening the way to a bonnanza . . . and when disillusioned blamed the group . . . Actually price structures are strong enough to suit the most critical . . . Volume is holding up well . . . The possibility of car orders still lurks in the background . . . And market action is no worse than that of all stocks . . .

BITS O' GOSSIP . . . Dresser Manufacturing is down for earnings of $2 a share in the books of some analists . . . Who carry on from there with forecasts of a dividend . . . Probably 50 cents a share . . . Detroit Steel Products is another company expected to show up well when full year results are in . . . Something around $3 a share is expected . . . The company is expected to get its share of army and navy orders . . . Thermoid boosters continue to talk about the business being done with Ford . . . Largely because the company is said to have doubled business with the latter it is estimated earnings will be 50 to 60 cents a share on the common . . .

Stocks Regain Part of Early Declines

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (AP)—The stock market marched down hill today but climbed part of the way back again after the first flurry of selling.

At their worst, shortly after the moderately active opening, leaders had lost fractions to around 2 points. Near noon they had recovered about half the ground lost.

Prominent in the downswing were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Bendix, Chrysler, Anaconda, Westinghouse Electric, Union Carbide, Santa Fe, New York Central, Electric Boat, American Can and Montgomery Ward.

Curtiss Wright fell off on sales of two blocks, one of 15,000 shares and the other of 10,000.

The new peace offer in Europe was considered bearish, brokers said, as were the implications that the suddenness of the move might indicate Germany contemplated a large scale offensive through the Netherlands and Belgium.

Markets at London, Paris and Amsterdam declined a little. Bonds were uneven and commodities were mixed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (INS) — Noon stock exchange prices: Chrysler 87, up ⅛; General Motors 51⅝, up ⅜; Bethlehem Steel 87½, off ⅝; U. S. Steel 73⅛, off ⅝; Union Carbide 87¼, off 1; Westinghouse Electric 111¼, off 1¼; Anaconda 33, off ⅛; United Aircraft, 48⅝, off ⅜; U. S. Rubber 40¼, off ⅛; American Can 106, off 1¾.

Dividends

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Union Tank Car Co. announced today an extra dividend of 10 cents a share on the capital stock, supplementing the regular quarterly payment of 30 cents, both payable Dec. 1 to holders of record Nov. 18.

The Celluloid Corp. declared a dividend of $3.50 a share on the first preferred participation stock, the first payment on the issue since the disbursement of $3 in December, 1937. It is payable Dec. 1 to holders of record Nov. 17.

Michigan Steel Tube Products Co. ordered a payment of 25 cents a share on the common stock on Dec. 9 to holders of record Nov. 28. Previously the company paid 15 cents quarterly.

The G. C. Murphy Co., operating a chain of variety stores, declared a quarterly dividend of $1 a share on the capital stock, due Dec. 1 to holders of record Nov. 20. The previous quarterly rate was 75 cents.

Cotton Futures Soar On Crop-Loan News

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (AP)—Cotton futures advanced sharply today on the announcement Tuesday in Washington of a new 1939-1940 cotton crop loan plan. Aggressive buying through foreign accounts, Wall street interests and trade short covering met only limited selling.

The list was 17 to 24 points higher when the market closed for the 20-minute interval to receive the government crop estimate and held gains of 12 to 20 points on the re-opening. With relatively light trading taking place, there was some selling by local professionals which met a fair trade demand at the slightly lower levels. December was up the most at 9.28 and July was up 12 at 8.80.

Q AND A BOX

J. A., Boston . . . McCrory Stores is said to be running 9 to 11 per cent ahead of last year . . . Dividend anticipations run upward from a dollar a share . . .

P. B. N., Boston . . . Walworth is currently reported to be doing an excellent business . . . A slight black ink margin for the year is thought possible . . . With 1940 prospects considered bright . . .
